Fulton Convicts Will Be Put On Eight-Hour Day

Change To Cost County $275,000 Annually, Chastain Warns.

The 1,200 convicts in Fulton public work camps today will go on an 8-hour work day as the result of action taken yesterday by the county commission in establishing an 8-hour program for convict guards and all other public works employees.

Under state prison rules, prisoners are supposed to work from "sun-up to sun-down." A bill is now pending in the assembly to reduce the work day to 10 hours.

State officials could not be reached for comment last night on the Fulton action which observers say may affect the entire state.

The action was taken over the protest of Commission Chairman Troy Chastain, who warned that the change would cost the county an additional $275,000 annually.

Lone Dissenter.
The vote was four-to-one with Chastain casting the lone dissenting ballot.

Sponsored by Dr. Charles R. Adams, chairman of the public works committee and bearing the endorsement of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the program provides that convicts shall work from 7 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon with one-half hour off for the noon meal. The other half-hour is for travel to and from the job.

Dr. Adams denied Chastain's charge that the change would entail additional cost. He said A. A. Clarke, superintendent of public works, had recommended the proposal and has assured him that the shorter day could be established without increasing the personnel of the department or the appropriation.

Points to Conditions.
Chastain charged that on the basis of the entire year, the convict guards will not average more than five hours a day.

"Why, just last year they lost 71 working days because of bad weather," he said.

He also pointed out that each guard is given five days off each month and in addition is allowed 15 days' sick leave and 15 days' vacation, which he said added up to 90 days a year with pay.

The new program, however, eliminates the 15 days' sick leave and the vacation period, but it was indicated the question of vacations would be discussed later.

Commissioners E. L. Almand, Charlie Brown and I. Glover Hailey supported Dr. Adams' program. Brown said the shorter work day would result in greater efficiency in the department.

In line with his program of streamlining the public works department, Dr. Adams recommended election of three new wardens and the pensioning of 12 persons and the board concurred.

A move to reinstate J. D. Sinkwich, Georgia's most publicized football player, will don his uniform and rejoin the team in the Bulldogs' spring practice at Sanford field tomorrow afternoon.

The 20-year-old lad from Youngstown, Ohio, who explained his absence from practice January 22 with "I'm tired of football and I'm quitting. I don't want to be famous; I want to be just like any other student, and see my girl when I want to," admitted today he had made a whooper of a mistake.

Head Coach Wallace Butts was accosted by Sinkwich on the street today and the player talked his way back on the squad after an hour's huddle.

"Sinkwich displayed a wonderful attitude and will be out for practice tomorrow," said Butts. Butts' action in permitting the star to return was influenced by the attitude of other Bulldog players.

Sinkwich had little to say to-night, although he appeared to be elated over the turn of affairs. "I can't wait to get out there and get back into the thick of things," he grinned. "The girls will just have to wait a while."

County Divided.
Union county itself is divided by the line, which swings south, then west not quite far enough to include Atlanta in Eastern time. Dropping south, it divides Bibb county, but leaves Macon on Eastern time. Swerving westward again, it misses Americus and Albany, which are on Central time, but puts Thomasville on Eastern time.

For years bitter fights have resulted from efforts to change the time line in Georgia. Actually, the change in the line would have to be made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. But Representative Suggs, in urging committee approval at a hearing yesterday, suggested "there will be no trouble with the ICC if the Georgia general assembly shows them we want uniform time in Georgia."

Obtained Change.
It was recalled that both Ohio and Michigan, once divided by the time line, had succeeded in obtaining a similar change from the Interstate Commerce Commission. Representative Suggs said considerable confusion resulted from the changing times, particularly among travelers and shippers. He argued the state line would be a convenient and logical point for shifting from Eastern to Central time.

His colleague, Representative John Ferguson, cited a number of south Georgia cities where there is "considerable confusion over time" because the line separates them although "some are within 25 or 30 miles of each other."

Labor Bill Attacks Situation at Gordon; New Union Formed

Edwards Seeks To Stop Organization on Defense Projects.

By CHARLES GILMORF.

A bill to prevent labor organizations from using threats or coercion in proselyting new members from among the ranks of nonunion workmen on national defense projects was introduced yesterday in the state senate by Senator H. B. Edwards, of the sixth.

The proposed law, aimed directly at a recent order requiring carpenters on the Atlanta General hospital project at Camp Gordon to join a labor union, also would make it illegal for labor representatives to demand money from workmen on projects financed by tax money.

Edwards provides in his bill that violations, either on the part of labor representatives or employers, would carry a penalty of from one to three years in the penitentiary unless a jury reduced it to a misdemeanor.

Calling the system "a racket and a disgrace," Edwards pointed out in presenting his bill that the carpenters' union demanded a $50 initiation fee before it would permit a man to work on a defense project.

Carpenters Move To Combat Demand They Join AFL Group.

Formation of the "Free Carpenters of America, Local No. 1," with a $5 total initiation fee "to combat exorbitant and unreasonable initiation fees of the existing carpenters' union on defense projects" was announced last night by Attorney Reuben Garland.

He said the organization already had a membership of 200 of the 1,100 carpenters employed on the Army's $2,800,000 general hospital at Camp Gordon, where a deadline for AFL membership, with $50 initiation fee and $2 monthly dues, has been set for 7 o'clock Friday morning.

The attorney, who was consulted by a group of carpenters after the deadline was announced Monday, said he was acting under the national labor relations act which gives workmen the right to form their own collective bargaining agency and denies employers right to interfere.

"We'll have cards ready tomorrow, and start our drive," said Garland. "If we get a majority in this fight on what is nothing but a shakedown of men who want work supplied by their government."

Sinkwich Back With Bulldogs; Urges Eastern House Group Admits Mistake Time for State

'Girls Will Just Have To Wait Awhile,' Grid Star Declares.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 5.—Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's most publicized football player, will don his uniform and rejoin the team in the Bulldogs' spring practice at Sanford field tomorrow afternoon.

The 20-year-old lad from Youngstown, Ohio, who explained his absence from practice January 22 with "I'm tired of football and I'm quitting. I don't want to be famous; I want to be just like any other student, and see my girl when I want to," admitted today he had made a whooper of a mistake.

Coates Doomed For Slaying of Patrol Officer

Sentenced in Catoosa Court; Death Date Set for March 7.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

RINGGOLD, Ga., Feb. 5.—Charles Clinton Coates Jr., 29-year-old escaped Missouri convict, today was sentenced to death in the electric chair at Tattall prison for the murder of Georgia State Highway Patrol Corporal Fred Black near here December 20.

A jury, composed largely of farmers, deliberated only 10 minutes before returning with a verdict of guilty without recommendation. Judge John C. Mitchell, of the Cherokee circuit, immediately fixed date of execution as Friday, March 7, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Judge Mitchell then ordered Coates taken to Fulton Tower, where he had been incarcerated since his capture December 25, with the exception of 34 days when he was undergoing treatment for frozen feet at an Atlanta hospital.

On the way to Atlanta, Judge Mitchell instructed, Coates was to meet his wife, Letha, who has been held at Dalton's Whitfield county jail since the night of Black's death.

It is understood that no charges remain against Mrs. Coates and that she will be released as soon as the cost of her transportation to Kansas City, Mo.—some $12—is guaranteed.

Coates, Captain J. J. Elliott, of the state police, reported, probably will go to Tattall day after tomorrow.

Trial Is Brief.

The trial, originally set for January 2 and postponed three times, began at 8:45 a. m. today. Selection of a jury required only about an hour, despite expressed fears of both sides that considerable time might be required.

The prosecution offered its case within the space of little more than an hour, after which Coates stated that "Charlie Butler, a friend I met in Memphis," and not he, had done the shooting.

Coates was the only witness in his own defense. Various rebuttal witnesses, including former Public Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan and other officials were called before the case closed early in the afternoon.

Each side was given an hour to complete its arguments. L. J. Harris, assistant prosecutor, opened for the state with a demand for the death penalty. He was followed by S. J. Hale, of Trenton, father of Defense Chief Maddox Hale, who was appointed to the defense battery by Judge Mitchell this morning because of the inability of State Representative Will McClure to appear and take charge of the Coates case.

Maddox Hale was unable to argue before the jury due to a slight illness which took him out of court before his turn to speak. Solicitor General J. H. Paschall, of Calhoun, was in charge of the prosecution. Judge Mitchell's charge took but 10 minutes.

Widow Is Present.
Corporal Black's widow, an attractive woman in a black hat and black coat with a fur collar, was present during most of the testimony, as were her father, T. W. Stokes, of Macon, and Black's father, W. F. Black Sr., also of Macon.

At the appearance of witnesses with whom Mrs. Black and her husband had been acquainted, Mrs. Black broke into sobs and left the room.

B. R. Farr, Georgia highway patrolman who was a companion of Black the night of the latter's death, was the first prosecution witness. He testified that they had stopped Coates for careless driving and had asked for his driver's license.

"Here's my driver's license," Coates said, handing Farr a piece of paper.

Farr testified that he saw Coates' car swerve into the path of Corporal Black's patrol car and that he saw Coates get out of the car and run toward the patrol car.

He testified that he saw Coates shoot at the patrol car and that he saw Coates get back into the car and drive away.

Mr. Kenneth Rogers attests the truth of this, but admits he can't. They gave him the works in one. Other Bugs mount trench mortars and other equipment.

OUT OF THE MUD—The three-man crew can manhandle the little Bugs out of almost any situation. They are remarkably versatile and the army is busy finding out the many ways they can be put to advantage in modern warfare.

Pétain May Quit Rather Than Bow to Laval

Admiral Darlan Reported as 'Heir' of the Aged Marshal.

By EVERETT R. HOLLES.

United Press Cables Editor.

Germany and Italy threatened last night, by press and radio, to tear up their armistice agreement and plunge defeated France back into the war, unless Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain submits to demands which would place Pierre Laval over him as a virtual Nazi dictator.

The 84-year-old Pétain, battling stubbornly against enormous pressure and threats, is in the midst of a struggle as historic as his stand against the Germans at Verdun 25 years ago when he uttered his defiant "They shall not pass!"

If he rejects Laval's demands—which Adolf Hitler fully supports because they are designed to make Laval a German puppet ruler at Vichy—the Armistice of Compiègne Forest suddenly may be revoked and France again placed at war against Germany and Italy.

Laval Sees Nazi Victory.

If he is compelled to submit, then France may be plunged into the war against her former ally, Britain, because Laval, once in power, might throw France's immobilized fighting strength into the scales in Hitler's "blow of decision."

The swarthy Laval, it can be said on the basis of reliable private advice, is convinced that the Axis is destined to emerge triumphant and wants France to abandon her nonbelligerency and go over completely to Hitler, militarily as well as diplomatically.

Thus, Pétain's only hope of saving the nation from war is to strike a compromise bargain with Laval, and dispatches from Vichy said a proposal of compromise had been decided upon.

Holds to Fleet.

The compromise which Pétain is understood to be sending to Laval in Paris today is intended to preserve France's peace and at the same time prevent Germany from obtaining control of the French fleet of 100 warships and vital North African naval bases which both Hitler and Mussolini so ardently desire.

Laval, in a virtual ultimatum brought back to Vichy by Admiral Francis Darlan, the No. 2 man of Vichy, demanded that he be restored to even greater power than he held when Pétain ousted him on December 14 for conniving at dictatorship.

He demanded, according to Vichy accounts, that he be named premier over a cabinet hand-picked by himself and that he be held responsible only to an assembly—also of his own choosing. He also seeks the key ministries of foreign affairs, interior, press and propaganda.

Under those demands, which Pétain quickly rejected as "pretentious," the aged marshal—the only remaining symbol of French unity and pride—would become a mere figurehead at Vichy. He

Bride of Month Bid Farewell by Doomed Slayer

Courtyard of Dalton Jail Is Scene of Final Meeting.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
DALTON, Ga., Feb. 5.—Charles Clinton Coates, under sentence of death for the murder of a Georgia patrolman, kissed his wife of a month farewell this evening in the courtyard of the Whitfield county jail, where she has been held for investigation.

Mrs. Letha Coates learned of her husband's fate from a representative of The Atlanta Constitution, who left the courtroom at Ringgold a few moments after Judge John C. Mitchell sentenced Coates to die in the Tattall electric chair March 7.

The plump young Missouri woman, who wed Coates December 18 in Mississippi after a run-away courtship, heard the news of Coates' sentence with no sign of emotion save a tightening of her lips. She made no comment.

A few minutes later, Coates, riding in the back seat of a Georgia state highway patrol car, arrived in the jail yard, and Patrol Captain J. J. Elliott notified Mrs. Coates of his arrival. They talked for 10 minutes before Captain Elliott notified them their time was up.

Coates said later they had talked, among other things, of financing a trip back to Kansas City for her.

"It'll cost about twelve bucks," Coates said. "I haven't got it now, but I hope I can get it up somehow."

Talmadge To Introduce Schram at Bureau's Banquet Tonight.

Emil Schram, of Washington, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Governor Talmadge tonight will address the 39th annual dinner meeting of the Atlanta Freight Bureau at the Atlanta Athletic Club. The meeting is scheduled for 6:30 o'clock.

Schram, who has become one of the key figures in the administration's defense program because of the RFC's purchasing and lending activities, will speak on "Transportation and Defense." He is expected to discuss the importance of adequate transportation of troops and military supplies in the event of a war emergency. Governor Talmadge will speak on the south's fight against freight rate discriminations, and will introduce Schram.

Schram is expected to reach Atlanta early this morning. At noon, he will be honor guest at a businessmen's luncheon.

E. L. Hart, executive secretary of the Freight Bureau, said yesterday that indications point to an attendance of more than 300 at tonight's meeting. Many industrialists and public officials, including members of the federal, city and state judiciaries, will be among the honored guests.

Annual reports of the freight bureau's activities for the past year will be made by J. R. Bachman, president, H. S. Collingsworth, treasurer, and Secretary Hart.

Coates Doomed For Slaying of Patrol Officer

Farr quoted Coates as saying, "He pulled out a pistol and said, 'stick 'em up, damn you.'"

"Then Coates fired, and the corporal slumped."

Farr then described a running gun battle which ended with the disappearance of Coates.

On redirect examination after Coates' statement implicating "Charlie Butler," Farr denied that there was more than one man in the car and identified the defendant as the man who had done the shooting.

Coates, making an unsworn statement in his own behalf, said that after Butler slew Black, he, Coates, fled across country, later coming back to aid Butler, who was seriously wounded.

"I got Butler to a doctor in Chattanooga," he said, "after he had gone crazy with pain. I was afraid to stay with him for fear he would fly off the handle, so I beat it."

"I did not shoot Mr. Black. Charlie Butler did. We (Coates and his bride) picked up Butler in Memphis. He was a witness at our wedding in a little town outside Memphis, just across the Mississippi line."

POSTAL RECEIPTS GAIN.

FBI May Seek Charles Martin

Charles E. Martin Jr., sought by police of half a dozen cities in the knife slaying of his pretty young wife here Monday, may also be hunted by the FBI on charges of evading the draft if he does not report to authorities here this week.

Registered for the draft at Board No. 1 in DeKalb, Martin's number came up on the February call, and his notification was mailed to him Monday. He would be inducted February 21, it was reported.

Under draft regulations, if he does not report to the Draft Board within five days after notification, his name may be turned over to the FBI for investigation.

Martin was reported at the inquest Tuesday to have once deserted the Army.

Funeral services for Dorothy Bryant Martin were held yesterday afternoon at the East Side Baptist tabernacle, with the Rev. W. N. Pruitt, a close friend of the girl's family, in charge. Burial was at Mason's cemetery.

Woman Halts Aid Bill Debate With Shouting

Skull-Masked, Black-Robed Heckler Yells Out From Gallery.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(UP) Legislators and spectators were intently listening to house debate on the British aid bill today. Suddenly a skull-masked, black-robed woman arose in the galleries, raised her right arm, and dramatically cried: "My Novena; My Novena!"

The chamber was stunned momentarily. Then attendants quickly hustled the shrouded figure out of the gallery and into the house sergeant-at-arms' office.

There she was revealed as an attractive young woman who identified herself as Margaret Russell, 34, of New York. Eventually she was taken to police headquarters.

A few hours later she was released by police, who stayed with her until she boarded a train for New York city.

Police quoted her as saying she was a native of Denton, Texas; had attended Vassar college; writes under the name of "Andra," and sought only to impress on the house that "death is the victor, not Germany, not England." She opposed the pending legislation.

How she achieved entry into the gallery—one reserved for persons holding cards from congressmen—remained a mystery. Police quoted her as saying a secretary to Representative Jeannette Rankin, Republican, Montana, took her in. The secretary denied it.

From New York came a dispatch identifying Miss Russell as publisher of a throwaway magazine called "Vista." It said one issue of "Vista" criticized newspapers for devoting too much space to Brenda Frazier and Adolf Hitler and for driving people apart instead of together and spoke favorably of the "poetry of a flower."

British Fast Nearing Bengasi, Hot on Heels of Fleeing Enemy

400 Stragglers Already Taken During Chase in Libya; 24 Italian Planes Destroyed as RAF Assists Great African Offensive.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The main body of Italian troops in Libya, fleeing back upon Bengasi just ahead of the pursuing British armored battalions, was reported tonight to have been pushed to a point 60 to 70 miles from that strongly fortified base in a retreat proceeding at the rate of 30 miles a day.

Elsewhere over the whole vast area of the African struggle new successes were claimed for British arms and a military spokesman thus summed up:

"The tempo of our advances on both fronts (in Libya and in Italian East Africa) has shown a marked speeding-up."

In the running rear guard Italian action along the Libyan coast, the British high command announced, 400 Fascist stragglers already have fallen captive, and there were indications that the full shock power of the British forces soon would be turned upon Bengasi itself—an important port lying 325 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

In Italian Eritrea, Italian Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, the British land offensive went on in co-operation with a British bombing offensive over thousands of miles which was said to have destroyed 24 Italian planes, aside from the damage wrought to many a Fascist base.

In Eritrea, British field forces pressed the Italians to the east from the region of Cheren—which involved in defeat. That would enhance his prestige.

While Petain framed his compromise and Darlan prepared to return to Paris to consult with Laval, the inspired Italo-German press and radio flung grave warnings at Vichy.

The Nazi Stuttgart radio, in a message relayed by the British Broadcasting Company, called for immediate "collaboration" from France and said:

"Remember, there is only an armistice between Germany and France and peace has not yet been established."

"France is warned." "If the position remains as at present or changes for the worse, as it seems likely to do, Germany will have to be on her guard and will be obliged to require securities from France and impose much more severe peace terms. France is warned."

The ultra-Fascist Italian newspaper Regime Fascista di Cremona called Petain "conceited and imprudent" and warned that the armistice pact with France "can be declared null and void on one hour's notice."

Petain, it was said, is surrounded by men "who are preparing new tragic days for France" and the marshal himself "is under British pressure."

If Petain's compromise should be accepted and Laval returned to power as vice premier, it is doubted in many quarters that the solution would be more than a stop-gap. The descendant of some oriental tribe which wandered into the French highlands generations ago, Laval has an oriental lust for revenge. He wants revenge on his successor as foreign minister, Pierre-Etienne Flandin, and on a group of five other men close to Petain.

Five Attacked. The five upon whom Laval would like to have revenge are: Raphael Albert, recently resigned as minister of justice; Marcel Peyrou, minister of interior who sent police to arrest him on the night of December 13; Dr. Jean Menetrel, private physician and personal secretary of Petain; Admiral Forêt, naval aide of Petain; and General Laure, the marshal's military aide.

These men, under bitter attack by the Nazi-controlled press in Paris, are held by Laval to be responsible for his "disgrace" and rough treatment at the time of his overthrow.

Should Laval return to Vichy his life might actually be in danger, according to private advice reaching the United Press from Europe.

Petain is the symbol of "reconstructed France," the only man with a secret following and, according to one Vichy account, has 99 per cent of the people behind him whereas "Laval would have trouble in mustering even the other one per cent."

Laval, at his office in Paris, is said to receive 400 or 500 anonymous letters a week—the most unpopular man in France in decades. But he laughs at the threats and even spurns police protection.

House Speeds Aid Bill With Night Session

Leaders Consider New Amendments in Move To Increase Support.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The house, with a small fraction of its membership present, droned through an evening session on the aid bill tonight, while administration leaders considered the possibility of new amendments designed to increase support for the bill.

The session ended a little before 11 and the house recessed until 11 a. m. tomorrow. At that time, meeting an hour earlier than usual, the chamber will start considering amendments in the hope of reaching a final vote on the bill by Friday night or early Saturday. Tonight's session concluded three days of "general debate" in which 111 members participated.

In prospect was a modification to limit the over-all period of time in which war supplies could be delivered to England. But, after studying the question, the leadership was veering away from proposals that the bill restrict the cost of the program to a stipulated figure.

Both these changes had been proposed by Representative Wadsworth, Republican, New York, an influential member of the minority, who, although ready to vote for the measure, thought his amendments might allay apprehension lest a dictatorship emerge from the operations of the bill.

The house itself was at the ragged end of three days' general debate. To give all who wished to talk an opportunity to have their say, a night session was ordered. It found some 30 of the chamber's 435 members present.

These spoke pro and con on the measure for from 5 to 20 minutes each, with few of their colleagues paying them any heed. Most of the speakers, after concluding their remarks, sauntered out and homeward.

In the galleries broad stretches of emptiness appeared. Although Democratic leaders said they were assured of a comfortable majority for the measure, they nevertheless were seeking as great a showing of unity as possible for the sake of its effect overseas.

During today's session, friends and foes of the measure had mixed it up in some warm debate. Pleading for passage of the measure, Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, majority leader, asked:

"What do you think Nazi Ger-

Press Pledges Aid to Navy in News Handling

Publishers Won't Print Items of Value to Unfriendly Nations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Secretary Knox said today representatives of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and a number of other publishers' organizations had assured him that they would co-operate in keeping out of their columns information which the Navy considers of value to "unfriendly nations."

The Navy Department chief made this statement at a press conference following a meeting with 21 men representing various interests in the news field.

Letters were sent out by the Navy recently to newspapers, radio stations and other organizations handling news.

Knox declared there was nothing compulsory about the request that publishers respect the wishes of Navy press officers as to what information should be printed on these subjects.

Asked whether the press would be free to print information on the listed subjects if it were disclosed on the floors of congress, the publishers replied affirmatively.

By such a situation, he said, would indicate lack of co-operation by members of congress, not by the press.

many and army-controlled Japan will do to the United States in case of an Axis victory?

"A victorious Axis will demand tribute of us in some way and . . . they will exact tribute in a brutal, vicious, ruthless modern manner."

"Inaction," he said, was an open invitation to an eventual attack on the United States.

A differing viewpoint was presented by Representative Knutson, Republican, Minnesota, who declared the nation "is being subjected to the same waving of flags, the same beating of breasts, the same roll of the tom-toms" as in the days before the country entered the World War.

Representative Andrews, Republican, New York, told the house that if conditions abroad are as bad as they have been described, "we ought not to be discussing this bill here at all today, we ought to be discussing the proposition of a declaration of war."

The New Yorker, senior minority member of the House Military Committee, urged that a top limit be placed on the amount of money to be spent under the program and expressed belief "it would be smart politics for the President of the United States to go along with it."

House debate continued before crowded galleries, with Representative Gibson, Democrat, Georgia, saying he favored all aid to Britain short of manpower. Invasion is not necessary to endanger a country, as is proved in the case of England, he said in reply to a contention that the United States might not be invaded.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee received the testimony of three witnesses who opposed the bill on the ground that it would permit President Roosevelt to push the nation into war. Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester, the first witness, contended, moreover, that the bill "delegates to one man full power to control completely the industrial life of America down to the smallest factory."

James S. Kemper, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, favored assistance to Great Britain, but with restriction that the United States commit no act of war, and that American soldiers, sailors and ships be kept out of the zones of war.

Dr. Herbert Wright, professor of international law at Catholic University, Washington, branded the bill "an unwarranted, unnecessary and excessive delegation of power by the congress to the chief executive, the exercise of which might very easily involve us in war or a violation of international law, or both."

PSYCHIATRISTS GET TOGETHER—How to keep "mental misfits" out of military service was the subject of discussion as psychiatrists from eight states gathered for a seminar here yesterday. Shown at left is Dr. W. W. Young, of Emory University, with Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan, psychiatric advisor to the selective service in Washington, who spoke yesterday afternoon.

Psychiatrists Warn Against Army Misfits

Military Force Is Not Curative Agency, Local Examiners Told.

The old idea of "put the boy in the Army and make a man of him" was attacked as "outmoded" by Army psychiatrists yesterday, who warned medical examiners of local draft boards against admitting "mental misfits" into military service.

"Men who cannot adjust themselves in civilian life cannot expect to be cured of nervous disorders by getting into the Army," Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan, psychiatric advisor to selective service headquarters in Washington, said.

Diagnosis Seminar.

He addressed a Fourth Corps Area seminar on psychiatric diagnosis for draft board psychiatrists and medical examiners, meeting at the Crawford Long hospital yesterday and today.

"The Army is not a social service center or a curative agency, nor a haven of rest for the wanderer or shiftless, nor a corrective school for misfits, the ne'er-do-well, of the feeble-minded," it was pointed out. "And these men are merely a tremendous expense if they are admitted for service." It was estimated that two billion dollars was spent during the World War in training mentally unfit men who later "cracked up," and in caring for these men, Dr. Sullivan said yesterday that with better and more thorough psychiatric examination of draftees, the number of mentally unbalanced can at least be cut in half.

Urges Precautions.

He called on medical officials on local boards to take every precaution to prevent men lacking definite stability of mind from being inducted into the service.

"Military service is becoming more and more a vocation," Dr. Sullivan said. "Soldiering requires certain qualifications, but it should be remembered that lack of these implies no disgrace. Many men psychologically unfit for military service are living useful lives in their communities, but would be a total loss in the crowded routine environment of the Army."

The psychiatrists will take up the problem of peculiar personalities, moodiness and other psychopathic conditions in sessions beginning at 9 o'clock this morning.

Council Group To Study Plan For Annexation

Four Major Residential and Industrial Sections Are Affected.

Proposed annexation of four major residential and industrial sections, comprising eight square miles of new territory and having a tax digest property value estimated at between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000, will be studied at a special meeting of city council's ordinance and legislation committee at 2 o'clock this afternoon, it was announced yesterday by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman.

The largest tract in the new program calls for annexation of five square miles to the north of the present city limits in the fashionable Peachtree section. It also includes the Atlantic steel plant and other industries along Bishop street. Haynes Manor, Peachtree Heights, Peachtree Terrace, the Atlanta Memorial park, the Bobby

Jones' golf course, Peachtree Hills and fashionable residences on Habersham and Rivers roads also would be included under the plan.

Boundary Lines.

Roughly this area would be bounded on the south by the present city limits extending out Piedmont avenue on the east to an extension of Wesley road, which would be the northern boundary, from thence the line would extend southward along North Side drive to the city limits.

The other large and valuable stretch under consideration will be the Druid Hills section, comprising about two square miles.

City limits would be extended eastward from the present line to the Decatur city limits and thence northward to the division line dividing the 15th and 18th districts of DeKalb county, thence westward to the eastern boundary of the Druid Hills golf course, and proceed northward around the course and west of Emory university to the southern lines of land lots 56 and 57 and westward to the present limits.

The Druid Hills golf course would be included along with a large section of thickly populated residential property in the Druid Hills area. Emory university would not be taken into the city and a large section out Clifton also would be exempted under the plan.

Clinic Proposal.

A half a square mile stretch extending roughly from the present city limits at Clifton street would be extended eastward to the East Lake Country Club. Present city limits would mark the northern boundary of the tract and would extend southward to south of Glenwood avenue.

The fourth area embraces about half a square mile in the Lakewood Heights section and includes the Chevrolet plant. Present city limits on the east would be extended eastward along Claire drive to Sawtell road, thence northeastward along Sawtell road to the federal prison to McDonough road, the present southern boundary of the city.

In addition to considering the new annexation proposal, the group along with council's hospital committee will study other proposals to merge the Albert Steiner Cancer clinic under management of the Grady hospital board of trustees and to create a metropolitan hospital authority to build a new Grady hospital and Battle Hill sanatorium.

Mayor LeCraw will appear before the meeting of the committees to urge approval of both the Steiner consolidation and the hospital authority proposals.

Caddy Accused Of Snatching $10, Arrested

Piedmont Worker Held After Allegedly Fleeing Lunch Stand.

John Beardon, 19-year-old caddy for the city-owned Piedmont golf course, was arrested yesterday afternoon just a few minutes after he allegedly snatched $10 in cash from the till of a Boulevard lunch stand.

Attracted by the screams of Mrs. R. F. Stuart, proprietress of the restaurant, police and passers-by joined in a brief chase which ended just 500 yards from the scene of the incident when young Beardon stumbled on the ball field of Tech High school. The youth was described as a former student there.

There he was arrested by Patrolman T. C. Scarborough, who was directing traffic at the Boulevard-Virginia avenue intersection. Fellow-caddies told police young Beardon took the money "because he had spent part of his rent." He lives with his mother just off Whiteford avenue, in Kirkwood. According to police, Beardon drank a bottle of beer, then went to the rear of the counter and picked up a telephone near the cash register.

Mrs. Stuart told police she knew the boy and was surprised to see him reach into the open cash register. When she walked toward him, he reached for her purse under the counter, Mrs. Stuart said. The purse contained $40, but the boy dropped it as he fled, police were told.

J. R. McLemore, caddy master of the Piedmont course, said Beardon had worked there for more than six years and never had given any trouble. He said, however, the youth would be dismissed.

At police headquarters Beardon was booked on "suspicion of robbery."

Pension Minimum Of $20 Is Proposed

Three members of the house of representatives yesterday introduced a resolution calling upon congress to finance old-age pensions at a minimum of $20 per month.

The resolution was proposed by Representatives Roughton, of Washington; Ferguson, of Sumter, and Barlow, of Colquitt. It asked that the federal government pay all the costs of old-age assistance up to $20.

It pointed out that some states do not have adequate funds to finance pensions and, therefore, cannot take up their share of federal money under the matching system. On the other hand, it declared, other states are able to put up larger amounts.

Beyond the $20 the payments would be continued as now, with the state paying half and the federal government half.

On the beautifully decorated stage, complete with kitchen and dining room furniture, Mrs. Baldridge, and her assistant, Miss Jo Ann Kater, gave a cooking demonstration with a jellied fish salad and a meat loaf over cheese as the entrees. The tuna fish salad was made of granulated gelatin, elery, flaked fish, olives and seasonings. The clear gelatin was placed in a fish mold over the salad, and the attractive finished dish was garnished with olives, forming the eye and tail of the fish, which was served on a platter garnished with lettuce.

The meat loaf, a veritable meal itself, was prepared with ground pork and beef, onions, peppers, bread and milk, and was topped with a layer of cheese, then iced with mashed potatoes.
Garnishings were pretty tomato flowers crowned with slices of green pepper and set around the platter in lettuce cups.

All the meats, coffees and breads used by Mrs. Baldridge at cussion by Mrs. Baldridge of the simplest methods to use for the easiest results.

LOOKS OVER STOCK—Mrs. Katharine Baldridge, dilate or vanilla wafer crumbs may be used, was made with cream and diced pineapple. Raisins or other fruits also may be used in this dessert, which Mrs. Baldridge froze in a new Kelvinator refrigerator from Davison-Paxon. The Kelvinator electric range, used in all the demonstrations, is also from Davison's.

The kitchen table and cabinet was furnished by Ed Matthews & Company, and the dining room suite, from Sterchi's, was graced with two lovely flower arrangements from Weinstock's. Mrs.
Baldridge's well-equipped kitchen was stocked with aluminumware from King Hardware Company, and shoes, which were highly recommended for housewives' comfort, were exhibited on the stage by Thompson-Boland-Lee.

The laundering demonstration exhibited the excellent method of removing ink stains and also showed the ease with which the family wash can be done with the very latest equipment. Mrs.
Baldridge washed shirts and towels in a modern washing machine, and described the use of an easy-to-use ironer.

Many late-comers were turned away for lack of standing room, but will have the opportunity of attending the sessions today and tomorrow. Among the other firms and products co-operating to make the school the most popular series of cooking classes ever held in At-

Barnes, Georgia Power Company,
Sherwin-Williams, Pig'n Whistle,

SHINY EQUIPMENT—C. R. South, of King Hardware Company, shows Mrs. Katharine Baldridge, director of The Constitution Cooking School, some of the complete line of aluminumware featured by that store. Mrs. Baldrige uses much of this ware in her demonstrations at the Erlanger theater.

TECHNICAL DISCUSSION—The finer points of electrical ironers are a topic of agreement with J. H. Almand, of Sterchi's, and Mrs. Katharine Baldridge, director of The Constitution Cooking School. Mrs. Baldridge's lectures at the Erlanger theater included detailed advice on home laundry problems.

Thomason as superintendent of the public works garage failed to carry. However, after two tie votes—only four members of the commission were present at this time—a compromise was reached and Thomason was reinstated as foreman at a salary of $200 a month. A. P. Dodd retained his position as superintendent.

New wardens are Charlie Cates,
John Adams and R. L. Wilson.

Those pensioned include Ed Ty-

W. G. Patton, in charge of equipment, was elevated to the rank of works with a salary increase of $225 to $300 a month.

Repeal of Laws Asked.
Other action by the commission follows:

1. Petitioned the general assembly to repeal six laws that fix the salaries of administrative county employees, exclusive of the judiciary. This proposal was introduced by Commissioner Brown.
2. Went on record as opposing any merger of Clayton and Fulton.
3. Set $125 a month as the salary schedule for all public works truck drivers. It was explained this was done to make the pay uniform.
4. Assured a large delegation of botanical garden enthusiasts that the county had no intention of abandoning the botanical garden project in the West End.
5. Voted 3 to 1—Commissioner Almand opposing—to eliminate gas and auto allowances for mem-

The office of Major W. P. Reed, of the state patrol, last night said Webb escaped from the hospital and came to Atlanta to demand his old post. He walked into the forestry office on the fourth floor of the capitol, and armed with a gun told a clerk to put him to work.

Sir Roderick Jones
Quits as Reuters Head
LONDON, Feb. 5.—(P)—Sir Roderick Jones resigned today after 25 years as chairman and managing director of Reuters (British news agency).
The announcement gave no reason for his retirement and there was no word as to who would succeed him.

Sir Roderick began his work with Reuters as an assistant correspondent in South Africa.
In the last war he was director of propaganda for Britain, and at the outbreak of the current war he was named a member of the advisory council of the ministry

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 5.—(P)— President Fulgencio Batista, announcing the re-establishment of constitutional guarantees which had been suspended to quell what he termed a seditious plot by the former heads of Cuba's armed services, called off today a sched-house.

The meeting had been called to ratify his suspension of such guarantees.

It was understood that Angela Gonzalez, deposed head of the navy, would sail for Miami tomorrow.

Colonel Jose Pedraza, former head of the Cuban army, and Lieutenant Colonel Bernardo Garcia, ousted head of the national police, went to Miami by plane yesterday.

Labor Unions Are Scored in Proposed Bill

project "and help the government in this crisis."

It was estimated that, at full strength, the Camp Gordon hospital job will require 2,000 carpenters. "At this rate," Edwards shouted to a practically complete senate and a full gallery, "the labor union will collect $100,000 from that one project alone, and if this body lets them they will go to Hinesville and Columbus and Macon and collect nearly half a million dollars."

Would Open Books.

His bill, which was referred to the State of the Republic Committee, demanded that all qualified citizens be given equal opportunity to work on jobs financed by tax money, that neither labor representatives nor employers could interfere with or discriminate against any defense project workers because of union or nonunion status and would lay the books open to study by the state commissioner of labor.

Edwards called on Senator Roland, of the 16th, to affirm his statements that a friend of Roland's had gone to Camp Gordon in search of work as an unskilled laborer and was forced to pay $4.50 union fee before he was hired. Roland affirmed the statement.

"Who gets this money?" Edwards asked. "I don't believe the honest-to-God members of the AFL and the CIO are behind this fee business. I think it is the higher-ups, the grafters who are trying to feather their nests from the sweat of the working man's brow."

He charged that unions would enlist a new member, get his fee and then lay him off the job so they could hire another in his place and get another $50 fee. Branding it a tax on work, Edwards prophesied an unchecked labor union that would tax "the air we breathe and the water we drink."

He was followed on the floor by Senator Wilmer Lanier, of the 18th, who called for a public hearing when the bill came up in committee. Indicating that he did not believe conditions as bad as Edwards painted them, Lanier said that if the hearing "showed it to be a racket then we ought to stop it."

Lanier described the advantages gained by workmen affiliated with labor unions and recalled recent gains made by labor. He said that to deny labor the right to organize would be counter to New Deal policies.

Senators Clash. Lanier and Edwards heckled each other on the floor of the senate for several minutes, Edwards interrupting Lanier's speech. Finally the debate was closed when they were ruled out of order for discussing a bill on its first reading.

The upper chamber also passed a resolution, 28-1, introduced by Senator Couch, of Fulton, calling for a senate investigation of allegations that private gasoline distributors had been in collusion with the State Highway Department, selling fuel at from 3 to 5 cents per gallon higher than to the general public.

President Charles Redwine within the next few days will name a three-man committee to investigate the report and inform the senate of the status of department gasoline purchases and the accuracy of rebate allegations.

A bill was introduced making it legal to operate motion picture theaters on Sunday, provided local administrative bodies grant the owners a Sunday license or 25 per cent of the registered voters in the locality demand that a license be granted by petition.

The bill was authored by Senators Odum, of the 9th; Campbell, of the 34th, and Dorsey, of the 32d, and also contains a clause enabling 25 per cent of the voters to order a permit withdrawn if they object to the action of the local administrative body.

Among the bills passed by the senate yesterday were two abolishing the office of state veterinarian and giving the duties to the Department of Agriculture, under which it now operates as a branch.

The acts would enable the commissioner of agriculture to hire veterinarians directly and to superintend the activities of the bureau.

A bill introduced by Senator Campbell raising the salary of Roy Leathers, solicitor general of the Stone Mountain circuit, from $4,000 to $5,000 was passed. Leathers is paid by pro rata contributions made by DeKalb, Newton, Clayton and Rockdale counties, which comprise the circuit.

Senator Fortson, of the 50th, introduced a bill requiring the registration of vehicles and the purchase of license tags prior to January 1 of the year they are to be in effect. His bill would require the Motor Vehicle Department to place tags on sale November 1 and to complete the sale December 31. Only new registrations would be accepted after that.

Union To Fight AFL Formed By Carpenters

ment, then our union will be the bargaining agent, and must be recognized, under the law."

This position was questioned by Carroll Griffin, vice president and general manager of the Griffin Construction Company, the contractor, who said he believed the project ranked legally as a local enterprise, not in interstate commerce and not subject to the National Labor Relations act.

"I am not prepared immediately to comment on this," he said, "as I have just heard of it. We have a verbal contract with the Atlanta local of the AFL carpenters' union, and we expect to live up to our commitments. As soon as the situation clarifies itself I shall be glad to make a public statement."

It was estimated earlier in the week by W. Lee Sorrells, business agent for the AFL union here, that half the carpenters on the job were members of his union. He said there would be fines imposed on them for having worked on an open-shop project. A notice posted in the local's office adjoining the employment office at Camp Gordon named the deadline for joining the AFL union and fixed $18.50 as the minimum down payment on the initiation fee.

Belief was expressed last night by Griffin that the deadline would be passed without incident.

Attorney Garland said identity of the officers of the new union would be announced today. He strongly endorsed a legislative movement, headed by State Senator H. B. (Hell Bent) Edwards, a Talmadge stalwart, to limit union fees for workmen on defense projects in Georgia.

Sorrells will post today an announcement of refund of initiation fee payments to any members subsequently discharged from incompetence. Griffin earlier this week said his company preferred dealing with unions because skilled artisans thus were assured.

Worth It

The first application of the new Georgia laws which give Governor Talmadge complete control of state finances results in full payment of teachers' salaries. There will be few in the state who will not agree that the steps were justified.

Hidebound opponents of the diverting of state funds from one department to another will undoubtedly register a contortion of protest, but it is difficult to see where anything can be more important for the welfare of the state, as a whole, than the prompt meeting of salary obligations to its teachers.

Too long has Georgia's treatment of the teachers in its schools been a disgrace and a scandal. Any steps that will remedy that condition are welcome.

Talmadge leaders have asserted that the highway department, from which the greater part of the funds are diverted, will not suffer too much, in the long run. It is proposed to restore a large part of the diverted funds during the summer, vacation months, when there are no teacher salaries to be met.

Even though, however, it does involve some retrenchment in highway building, the condition will not be disastrous for years to come. Georgia is now sufficiently criss-crossed with highways that there are few communities that can claim ever to be isolated by mud, and none of the larger centers can be in that predicament. If the present roads are maintained, and a few more built as finances permit, the road situation will not be at all bad.

Of course, if diversion meant that, despite payment of teachers, bad roads kept the children from school, in any large numbers, there might be some grounds for argument. But this is, simply, not so today.

The most valuable potential asset of the state is its children. Through education and the opening of opportunity these future men and women of Georgia will become, in every sense, better citizens than those who have preceded them. There is no more sacred opportunity than the conscientious teaching of these youngsters and there is no more sacred duty upon the leaders of the state than that the teachers shall be adequately and promptly paid for their services in the classrooms.

The new state administration makes a good beginning when it makes salary justice to the teachers its first objective and, through them, better education to the state's youth is primary desire.

Other state activities are important, it is true, but there is none which cannot well afford to wait while the teachers are paid.

We're for youth of any kind, but particularly if it doesn't spell itself with a capital "Y."

Time o' Day, in Georgia

A senate committee has favorably reported a bill to make eastern standard time the time under which all of the state of Georgia shall operate. If the senate, and the house, will follow the committee advice and pass that bill, generations of Georgians will bless the 1941 assembly and feel gratitude to the men who removed one of the most irritating of Georgia confusions.

At present Georgia is on eastern standard time save for a strip of territory on the Alabama side, including Atlanta. There is no logical reason for such a confusing state of affairs and if, by moving the line of time change to the state line, Georgians can more easily and simply conduct business and social affairs together, then let us, by all means, move it.

As it is, there is a constant state of mental turmoil for all who have contact with various parts of the state. Calculations must be made, for instance, whenever an Atlantan and an Athenian discuss a joint appointment and full allowance for the hour's difference in time must be made when arranging to fill any engagement in "the other" time zone.

Gentlemen: Let us pass this bill, place

Georgia on the same time, for every county and every citizen and let us thus make intelligible answer possible when one Georgian asks another the time o' day.

In the west a campus malcontent threatened a professor with "a fate worse than death." It sounds like being rescued by Hitler.

The Freight Bureau

Tonight will witness the 39th annual meeting of the Atlanta Freight Bureau. Emil Schram, chairman of the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, of Washington, will be one of the two principal speakers. Governor Talmadge will be the other.

The Freight Bureau is one of the most important bodies in the economic life of Atlanta, Georgia and the southeast. During the years since its organization it has saved, for this section, untold sums through its protection to shippers against excessive charges for freight. In the highly complicated rate structure of modern carriers overcharges can easily occur unless there is some such organization as this to which the shipper can apply for specialized information.

In another, and equally important way, the bureau has served the southeast. It has championed, through all its career, the elimination of inequitable freight rates which have long penalized the south, to the advantage of the industry of north and east. In the efforts now under way for elimination of the unfair differential in rates against shipments whose point of origin is in the southeast territory, the bureau has led. That effort is now bearing fruit and already many varieties of products from this section are enjoying equality in rates with competitive sections. Ultimately it is believed the final inequality on this territorial basis will be eliminated.

The Freight Bureau is performing, constantly, an invaluable service to business of this section and it is matter more for congratulation to business as a whole, even than to the bureau itself, that it is enabled to mark, tonight, the 39th milestone in its career.

A cranberry grower at Carver (Mass.) was amazed to receive a government crop benefit check for $1,000,015.25. He didn't know the new abundance bothered with odd quarters.

Roadside Signs

The bill introduced in the general assembly for regulation of advertising signs and billboards along the highways and roads of Georgia has long been needed. There should be better means of control than now exist, or at least better enforcement of any and all regulations for this purpose.

The better class of advertisers will undoubtedly welcome any legislation which will remove the eyesores from the lands adjacent to the highways. It is the disreputable, undesirable signs that give a bad name to all and, also, largely destroy any advertising value there may be in the better type of billboards. Whether the bill introduced by Representative Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton, is the ideal solution remains to be seen. It may contain undesirable features. The measure is stated to have the support of the Garden Clubs of Georgia. If it has any faults they can doubtless be removed before the bill becomes a law.

A reasonable number of attractive, well-kept billboards, located at proper distance away from the highway, is not objectionable. It is the ramshackle, irritatingly repetitive signs that clutter almost the very shoulder of the road that mar the panorama and spoil the natural beauty of nature.

If these are removed, if well-kept billboards are restricted in site and number and are not permitted too close to the highway, there will be vast improvement in the scenic beauty of Georgia and a great acceleration of the state's lure for auto visitors.

Editorial Symposium

WILLKIE IN BRITAIN

As Wendell Willkie cuts short his visit to Great Britain to speed back to the United States and a hearing before the senate committee considering the lease-lend bill, "he will leave behind him the memory of one Republican who can't help being a Democrat," says the ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT, which declares he showed "spanking good judgment about how to be engaged." After making all the formal contacts and visits, the shaggy-looking gentleman made a bee-line for the British pubs. He toured them one after another... gossiping politics and chaff and war like a right "un." And the WASHINGTON POST points out that Mr. Willkie went "through a schedule of visits and fact-finding and interviews which would take most people a month to liquidate. The way he has gone about his task is likewise impressive. Not content with his letters of introduction to the great and the near-great, he has talked to all and sundry, the 'Bobby' on his beat, the hotel chambermaid, and a passing 'Tommy.' His own difficulty seems to be that he doesn't quite understand the variegated lingo of his interlocutors."

However, the MIAMI HERALD doesn't "know just what Wendell Willkie went over to England for, since he has repeatedly stated he has no official status, unless perhaps he is still infected with the publicity virus that attacked him in Philadelphia last summer." And, "In commenting on Willkie's rather hurried visit to Britain," the SAN DIEGO TRIBUNE-SUN feels "it seems generally to have been overlooked by commentators that it followed closely on the heels of Harry Hopkins' departure for Britain as special envoy of President Roosevelt. Hopkins' visit avowedly is official; Willkie's visit avowedly is private. Could it be that Willkie's visit is in some way directly connected with Hopkins' visit? Consider Willkie's statement that he wants to 'see things for himself.' Himself and who else? And why?"

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

REPUBLICANS DIVIDE ON LEND BILL WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—If the signs on Capitol Hill mean anything, the prospects for rapid and favorable action on the lease-lend bill have considerably improved in the last fortnight. Immediately after the bill was introduced, the isolationist high command managed to raise a pretty impressive ruckus. The ruckus failed, however, to spread from Washington to the country. Thus the isolationists have neither the resources nor the self-confidence a minority always needs to make a serious showing against the congressional majority.

The best proof of the new trend is to be found among the Republicans. It is axiomatic that Presidential measures cannot be defeated, unless substantially modified, unless they Republicans unite against them. The heretical Democrats are too few to get anywhere without all the Republicans to help them along. And in this instance, although most Republicans undoubtedly dislike the lease-lend bill for its grants of power to the President, a surprising number are lining up on the administration side.

SITUATION IN THE SENATE

The situation differs in the house and senate. In the house, the influence of Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. is always on the side of isolationism. As usual, he has refrained from asking for isolationist commitments at the Republican conference. But he has made no secret of his personal opinion, and thus has herded all the timid and wavering Republicans into the isolationist camp. The group of Republican house members who will follow Representative James Wadsworth in supporting the bill is comparatively small.

Fortunately it is in the senate, where the course of the fight is far more doubtful, that important Republican defections are likely. Shortly after the start of the lease-lend fight, on the joint motion of Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, and Chan Gurney, of South Dakota, the anti-isolationist Republican senators began a series of meetings. The meetings were held in the evening, generally held in the evening, were attended by Aiken and Austin, of Vermont; Brewster and White, of Maine; Holman, of Oregon; Ball, of Minnesota, and Barbour, of New Jersey, as well as by Gurney and Bridges.

No promises have been asked or given. Several of the men present have shown sympathy for this or that amendment sponsored by the isolationists. But the isolationist bill, generally held in the evening, were attended by Aiken and Austin, of Vermont; Brewster and White, of Maine; Holman, of Oregon; Ball, of Minnesota, and Barbour, of New Jersey, as well as by Gurney and Bridges.

Furthermore, the isolationist Republicans seem to be growing less fervent. This phenomenon is attributable to the wily party chieftain in the senate, Charles L. McNary, of Oregon. McNary, as always on big issues, has put first things first. He is personally dubious of the lease-lend bill, but he is not yet ready to vote against the bill itself, he is almost certain to support most of the isolationist amendments. Yet he has told his followers firmly that the first thing to think of is not how to make the loudest row against the President's bill, but how to avoid presenting an appearance of national disunion to the outside world. His is a powerful voice for moderation.

Finally, even the most ardent opponents of the bill seem doubtful of the wisdom of an all-out fight. Not long ago, former President Herbert Hoover turned up in town, and was present at a small men's dinner of Republicans at the house of former Assistant Secretary of State William R. Castle.

He deprecated the frontal attack of a demand for a substitute bill—until then the opposition strategy. Instead, he proposed that Republicans offer certain amendments strong enough to remove all objection to the bill and, incidentally, to make the bill inoperative in many vital respects. Both Senator Taft and House Leader Martin accepted Hoover's proposal, and after the Castle dinner and a talk with McNary about the President's White House conference, Senator Taft even announced that he would "like to vote for the bill" if it could be amended to suit him. This is not the note, quite obviously, on which to make a knock-down, drag-out fight.

ISOLATIONIST TAG All of this, of course, does not diminish the probability that the Republican party in congress will come out of the lease-lend controversy with an isolationist tag pinned to it. The action of the house Republicans cannot be discounted. Moreover, where there are eight senate Republicans on the anti-isolationist side, there are at least 12 true-blue isolationists, and eight more on the fence. The senate Republicans may be expected to split nearly two to one for isolation on amendments and then to divide much more evenly in the final vote.

Wendell L. Willkie has done his best to lead his party to a different stand. Unquestionably his declaration for the President's bill prevented the much worse party behavior which some of his enemies hoped for. But while Willkie cannot be said to have carried his party along with him, he and the like-minded Republicans in congress have at least removed the lease-lend controversy from politics. And this is one of the main reasons why there are other encouraging signs—such as the marked improvement in the general congressional atmosphere, and the administration managers' new forecast that they will pass the bill by the end of February, instead of the middle of March.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Jeannie And

The Brown Hair.

Have noticed quite recently where some newspaper commentators are still protesting against too frequent renderings of that Foster song about Jeannie and her brown hair. It seems to me the protests are somewhat passe.

I suppose the radio is turned on in my home at least half the time I am there. Of course, personally I'm not listening to it part of the time. It just sort of goes on, noted in the semi-conscious "but accepted as part of the routine, permanent sounds, like auto horns out of doors and the snap of the furnace when it turns on or off.

But I swear I haven't heard Jeannie in at least three weeks. Other Foster songs, yes. Camp-ton Races' several times recently. And I've heard, even, Polly Wally Dood and Little Brown Jug. And other ancient catch songs. But not Jeannie.

And I'm not so sure Jeannie is so outworn, at that. One of my agents reported this week that, while he was in a "joke joint" in south Georgia, last Saturday night, Jeannie was the most frequently played number of a juke box where the individual who deposited the nickel chose the tune.

Eyes And Ears

And Nose.

Of recent weeks it has been my fortune, for good or ill, to require treatment of three important organs. The eyes, the ears and the nose. It has reached the point where a special appointment book is almost needed to keep engagements with the various doctors straight.

And it also requires careful attention to medication. Drops for the ears, for the nose, for the eyes. Spray for the nostrils. Keep 'em all correct as to time and the right bottle. Quite a job.

But I've learned some things and am in a position to give a little free advice on the care of the nose and the ears. The eyes are too mysterious for understanding by laymen, anyway.

But I've learned that many cases of deafness, partial at least, are caused by accumulations of wax in the ear ducts. The average man or woman never thinks about this. They believe that a little home treatment with a hairpin, or gem clip, will get all the wax out. No sir!

Wax sometimes stays for years, deep in the ear, against the eardrum, and gets harder and harder until it is almost like stone. And then the individual wonders why he, or she, is getting hard of hearing.

The doctor told me everybody should go to a specialist every six months and have their ears properly cleaned.

It sounds reasonable.

He told me, too, that the aforementioned hairpin or gem clip or other handy tool, is really dangerous. The skin inside the ear is very delicate and he said most of his patients came to him after they'd gotten infected ears caused by some such home treatment. The same goes for the nostrils. Surprising how many people, in private at least, indulge in that habit of "nose picking." And there isn't a really clean fingernail in a million.

Am beginning to believe that complete care of your own physical appearances is an all-time job for any man. Or woman. And isn't this human body of ours a thing strangely and wonderfully made? Though it does seem to me there are ways in which it could be improved. For instance, why leave a fellow a useless and dangerous appendix and take away his teeth in middle age? Seems to me it should be arranged to leave him what he can use and just take away something that is of no use to him whatsoever.

One member of the family, for really good and sufficient cause, so far forgot as to explode in vigorous "Dawn" in the youngster's hearing.

And for the next two hours the granddaughter paraded the latest addition to her growing vocabulary by hissing "damn" all over the house.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Error in Geography. NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—These dis-patches have been having a little editorial snarl with James Florentine Bechtel, the editor of a paper in Dayton, Ohio, which purports to speak for labor with an upper-case L. In a recent essay on the durable subject of racketeering in the union movement reference was made to dynamiting in Dayton, and Mr. Bechtel fearlessly but little too rashly denounces this remark as a wicked falsehood.

I say it was rash of him to do this because, from his standpoint, the subject is one which it were better not to agitate. The fact is that I was guilty of a small geographical error, not a misstatement, because there were actually four dynamitings, one near Canton on November 11 and three more in a single night in Akron, about a week later. The Canton blast demolished a steam shovel operated by a small strip-mining company, and the bombs destroyed three building jobs on which CIO labor was employed and killed an AFL man who, police say, was engaged in planting the explosives.

The man who was killed was Robert Floyd, a native of Oklahoma, where he had served two years in prison for grand larceny, and a member of the Operating Engineers' Union of the AFL. Apparently he used a fast clock or misread the dial of the mechanism in the dark as he was delivering his message to the community, for he was demolished himself.

Hold Union Official

His brother, Horace Telford Floyd, also a member of the engineers' union, was arrested and, according to the word of the Akron police department, has signed a confession on the basis of which the police arrested Harry D. Jones, business agent of the union in Akron and vice president, no less, of the Ohio Federation of Labor, on a charge of malicious destruction of property.

Since then the surviving Floyd brother and Jones have been indicted on this charge. Jones was released on $7,500 bond, while Horace Floyd has been held in jail in default of $15,000 bond.

The Operating Engineers' Union, which both of the Floyd brothers and Jones adorned, is the one whose sixth vice president, Joe Fay, of New Jersey, slugged David Dubinsky at the AFL convention in New Orleans for daring to propose that undesirable characters be kicked out of the organization—a suggestion which Mr. Fay may easily have taken to be a personal affront.

Member Of Mob

Mr. Fay is a member of the Frank Hague mob in New Jersey, where he has been intimate with that sterling character, man and ornamental American character. A Harry Moore, late member of the United States senate and later Governor of New Jersey, who as Governor appointed Hague's undisputed and professionally callow son-in-law, the highest court in the state at $9,000 a year for the expressed reason that he knew it would make the justice's daddy happy.

Fay has worked both sides of the street as a professional labor skate and is a rich labor leader and power in the AFL. He is also closely allied with the so-called Common Laborers' Union, or shakedown, which collects, roughly, $1,000,000 a year in per capita fees from its locals, but never holds conventions or elections.

Fay himself, incidentally, won his last election to international office in the Operating Engineers' Union on a ballot which was a direct steal from Adolf Hitler's.

The ballot read as follows: "In order to vote for a candidate make a cross in the square below the name of your choice."

There then followed in a descending row the list of candidates, one for each office, so that the members had a choice of one all the way down to and including the board of trustees, a triumvirate for which only three men were named on the ballot.

The Trades and Labor Assembly of Akron, the central body of AFL unions there, was distressed by insinuations from the CIO regarding the dynamiting of the Akron CIO building jobs. The nature of the insinuations should be obvious in view of the union affiliations of the men arrested and the man who was killed.

Mr. Bechtel has made quite an issue of veracity and accuracy in his challenging article in his union paper, and it is therefore desired to present the facts as far as they are known to date and to plead guilty of a geographical error. I am indebted to this able journalist for his, perhaps, indiscreet criticism and trust that this correction will make him feel just fine.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

OUR DIRTY LINEN A gentleman from New Jersey, whom I do not know, took his pen in hand and dropped a little note to me taking the state of Georgia to task.

He said that he had seen "Tobacco Road" and that he had seen the picture, "I Am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang." Also he said he was familiar with the efforts of Georgia to bring back the convict Burns and he thought that was pretty bad. But, he said, what really impelled him to take pen in hand and dash off a note to the newspaper, was that he had read where Mr. Hell-Bent Edwards, the senator from Lowndes, was busy washing the dirty linen of Georgia and was charging one day the former governor had taken away the state silver, only to learn the next day that the audit showed the state mansion was still furnished.

"What kind of a state is it," he asked, "that enjoys such a 'Tobacco Road-Fugitive-missing-silver' reputation, anyhow?" Well, it so happened that this letter arrived on Wednesday morning. Your correspondent was feeling a bit low on account of it was his birthday and he was suffering from a slight headache brought on by eating too much chicken at a dinner the night before. But, your correspondent said, here is something which must be dealt with. The citizen in New Jersey must not go unanswered. When anyone from such a state as New Jersey feels he can criticize the sovereign state of Georgia, something must be done about it.

A FRANK PEOPLE We are a frank and forthright people in Georgia. We do have a Tobacco Road.

We would like to put the fugitive Burns back in jail where the courts sent him. It is not that we have anything against Mr. Burns, but it annoys us that the state of New Jersey, with one of the worst prison systems in the Union, should take unto its bosom one of our convicts and make a publicity stunt of it. We win when Mr. Hell-Bent Edwards gets up and advertises the state of Georgia as he did, but we grin and bear it, knowing that common sense finally will prevail.

Our Tobacco Road is right near Augusta. The play by Mr. Caldwell did not exaggerate. In fact, it probably was a bit mild. But, bad as it is, it is a small area and it is a small section involving but a few persons. And, again, bad as it is, it cannot approach the large industrial slums of New Jersey where industry has gone and left thousands who live on a level lower than that of Tobacco Road.

Our government is, at times, eccentric. It is our habit, distasteful but inevitable, to try and make out as bad a case as possible against our outgoing governors. We presently are engaged in giving to our current governor unusual powers and the majority of the people believe he will do a good job.

Yet I recall very plainly seeing him walk through the lobby of one of our hotels but a few years ago and hearing people hiss him and seeing others turn away from him.

We just don't have any inhibitions down here in Georgia, and are an honest people who believe in calling a spade a spade and hanging our dirty linen out on the line where the neighbors may see it.

This enables them to button up their coats and hide their own dirty shirts. And to look down their noses at us.

But, we get along.

OUR POLITICS They laugh at our politics. But honest, now, we are just amateurs in comparison with New Jersey's Hague.

Our politics are pure as a limpid mountain stream when compared with the graft and corruption which is rife in New Jersey and which has existed there for so long it seems to be the rule rather than the exception.

At least here in Georgia we get up on our hind legs and fight it out and call names and make some progress. We do not sit supinely on the heel of our pants and let it go on and on for generations and generations. There is no machine running politics in Georgia as there is in New Jersey and a number of other states one might mention.

Mr. Hell-Bent Edwards can get excited all he wishes and call names and advertise the state adversely. We do not take him, or anyone else, seriously until we learn the truth about it. We print what he says and we also print what the Governor's friends say about Hell-Bent. And it is just as bad as Hell-Bent says about them, although perhaps not as picturesque.

We have a lot of fun and, of course, we are not perfect. We know that. But the main thing is that we still are an independent people, not bound down by any political machine which can perpetuate itself year after year and decade after decade.

We worry about our problems of government and of graft and waste and vice and all that sort of thing. But, when a survey is made, we find we are just amateurs in vice and gambling and in graft and waste and governmental faults.

I have to laugh, thinking about all the good people worrying about Georgia's Tobacco Road and its convict Burns and its governors, when right before their eyes there are much worse things which need correcting. But that's all right. We don't mind. We are getting along, making progress and doing things. I trust the gentleman from New Jersey is well and happy. And I wonder if he has looked at his own linen? I'll bet his figurative collar is dirty.

You Also Can Serve by Only Crying "Attaboy!"

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

If you understand what is happening and yearn to do something about it, and if your yearning includes a desire to address your senators and representatives and you haven't time to compose a letter, you might serve the cause of civilization by sending each of them something like this.

We, the people back home, realize that you are having a hard time, and the purpose of this letter is to express our understanding sympathy.

We read in our papers that Washington is infested with a locust swarm of lobbyists as never before in our time, and we know how they torment and distress you.

Your chief concern at present is to serve your people and your country wisely and well; but your second concern is to keep your job, and to that end you are careful to avoid giving offense to your constituents.

This second concern is nothing to your discredit; but you can't please everybody in time of turmoil, and offending those who are in the wrong will bring you ten supporters for every one you lose.

Agents of privileged groups threaten to punish you and the nation if they are removed from the public trough, but you can safely disregard them. The day of special privilege is over. There can be no special pets while the nation is fighting for its life.

You worry about the public debt, and you see dark days ahead; but we counsel you to forget these things. What America must do, it can and will do; and we'll cross each bridge as we come to it.

For the present, all else must be subordinated to the business of making our country safe.

If you and your colleagues were operating in secret, or were free of all anxiety concerning your political and financial future, we do not doubt that you would act wisely, efficiently and honorably.

Therefore we urge you to forget our opinions and reactions and everything else under heaven except your duty and your nation's welfare.

Don't be afraid. Give no heed to the threats of the greedy, the selfish and the disloyal. Have courage and dare to do right and we'll back you to the limit.

Decides To Invest In Toy for Neglected Child of Family.

This afternoon, if I think of it and get around to it and the store isn't too far off my beat and I find some odd change in my pocket I'm going to buy a present for a friend and pal.

For Ding, the sole remaining member of my family of dachshunds.

Poor little neglected youngster, he never had a toy in his life. And he's more than a year old, which is about 12 or 15 in terms of a human boy or girl.

Ding lives outdoors—which is perhaps one reason why he keeps well. He lives in a box barely big enough for him to curl up in, so his body heat will keep it fairly warm. He seems satisfied.

He comes into the house before breakfast—but I'm afraid I'll have to cut that out. Because I enjoy a cup of coffee and The Constitution at that time. Ding doesn't object to the coffee but he can't understand why his lord and master should bother with a newspaper when a dog wants personal attention. Such as commands to "sit up" and "roll over." So he drags the paper out of my hands and insists on climbing into my lap. The Mistress of the Manor encourages him in that. It gives her a chance at the paper.

A great, big, grown-up dog, eight inches tall and three feet long, who has never had a toy isn't easily accustomed to them. For weeks I have tried him on a tennis ball. He professes to be interested but his heart isn't in it. He will chase it and bring it and drop it. But he'd rather drop it.

Learning To Play.

Because it makes mighty poor chewing. It's too big for his mouth and he can't get a grip on it. But he has succeeded in gnawing three-fourths of the outer covering off. Which he swallowed—to avoid muzzing up the rug.

He's well past the puppy stage, when he chewed half the upholstery off the back seat of the car when I wasn't looking. And he doesn't dig up fancy bulbs in the garden, unless he remembers burying a bone under that particular spot. In that case—well, it's his bone, isn't it?

Trouble about Ding as a fire-side companion is that he won't lie down and go to sleep, as his mother, the Jeep, preferred to do. He wants to be up and doing, smelling around for mice or lions or elephants or whatever he thinks might be threatening the household.

When I buy him that rubber bone—guaranteed equal in toughness to a 20,000-mile tire—maybe he'll settle down to conquer it and

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Once again we see an effort to pass a law legalizing gambling on dog and horse races in Georgia, as provided in the pending bill offered by Roscoe Pickett Jr., of Pickens. That this bill will meet with defeat, if brought to a vote, I have little doubt, just as similar bills have died in previous sessions of the general assembly, either in the committee or on the floor. Even so, it is well for the citizens of Georgia to keep an eye on this latest effort to thrust upon the youth of our state the snare of legalized gambling.

The agreement is, of course, that some revenue would accrue to the state's depleted treasury; but who would be willing to sell our birthright for this mess of grievous pottage? One has but to examine the record of sister states where they have tried legalized gambling on dog and horse races to see what would quickly happen in Georgia, should such a law be enacted.

George Washington said: "Gambling is the child of avarice, the brother of antiquity, and the father of mischief." Benjamin Franklin said: "Just as we would keep wax from fire, so must we seek to keep youth from gambling." George Herbert said: "Gamblers and racehorses never last long." Francis Bacon said: "A gambler, the greater master he is in his art, the worse man he is." Mark Twain said: "There are two times in a man's life when he should not speculate: when he can't afford it, and when he can't." Chaucer said: "Hazard is the very mother of lyings and of deceit, and cursed forswearings." And John Gay said:

"Look round, the wrecks of play behold;
Estates dismember'd, mortgag'd, sold!
Their owners now to jails confined,
Show equal poverty of mind."

Should such a law be enacted, every urban community in the state would immediately have the added problem of this subtle form of temptation by which countless young people would be drawn into gambling, which would mean the further temptation to steal from employers and parents. And we will not forget that thousands of soldiers will be stationed in Georgia for the next several months, maybe years. With such a law, the gambling lords would install their iniquitous dens as near the army camps as possible.

We have problems enough without legalizing gambling. The fate of this bill will be sealed if citizens throughout the state will write their representatives in the general assembly, expressing their convictions on the matter.

let me read my paper. In peace instead of in pieces. Anyway, I'm going to try it.

Savannah's Siestas.

Savannah Press is up in arms against the tradition, fostered in newspapers, of jealous up-and-coming cities, that Savannahans of the employer class go home to lunch, take a nap afterward, and telephone to their assistants that they won't be down this afternoon.

The Press points out that restaurants in Savannah are more numerous than ever before and seats are at a premium at the luncheon hour.

It avers that the two-hour midday siesta of the cotton factors, doctors, lawyers, merchants and bankers is a thing of the past. It used to be but it ain't. Quite a number of people eat lunch at a restaurant or soda fountain and get back on the job.

I am tempted to ask: "So what?" But I shall refrain. And refraining is a difficult task for me.

Personally, I am in favor of the two-hour after-luncheon nap and the remainder of the afternoon fishing. For executives. Not that I ever hope to be an executive.

But an executive—a real grade A executive—who can't dispose of his arduous duties by 1 p. m. is a darn poor executive. I'm not thinking of a morning newspaper job, where things arise—or may or may not—until the wee small hours. But of all the other businesses—about which I know less than nothing, as carping critics probably will point out.

I'm fighting for the ancient tradition in behalf of the morning newspaper boys in Savannah—where I served my apprenticeship. The only place you could interview a big shot in the afternoons was on the beach or at the Isle of Hope or the Yacht Club. Which made it very pleasant for all of us. There was always Scotch—and occasionally champagne.

"Dead or Alive?"

Sounds like a "western" from Arizona or New Mexico:

"One hundred dollars reward will be paid to anyone furnishing evidence of anyone stealing cattle or hogs in Lowndes county."

Signed by the board of county commissioners.

I don't know much or anything about hog thefts. But I've been told about cattle stealing in south Georgia.

They don't round 'em up and drive a herd across the Rio Grande. As in the books. They just drive up a truck and pick up cows slumbering in the highways and coax them into the truck—a kidnapping case, really—and take them somewhere and sell them.

That's tough on the owners. But if the cattle thieves succeed in removing all the cows from the highways I won't go to law about it. They're not my cows.

Parley Studies Adjustments Of Dixie Farms

Single-Crop Plantation Now Thing of Past, Experts Find.

The old southern farm which relied upon a single crop of cotton or tobacco is dead.

Major adjustments in agriculture are imperative to overcome undernourishment, soil and human erosion and large-scale tenancy. Already the decrease in cotton and tobacco acreages has added greatly to the farm labor surplus—a surplus not immediately visible because of national efforts—and it is believed that tractors in the next few years will displace the labor of 300,000 more families.

These principal aspects of the south's farm difficulties were emphasized yesterday as agricultural experts of colleges and extension services gathered for first meetings of the forty-second annual convention of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers.

Many Problems.

"Any shift to other crops or practices involves many problems," the president, I. O. Schaub, dean of North Carolina State College, Raleigh, pointed out. "But I venture to predict that the future prosperity of the south is tied irrevocably with the efforts we are making in the development of scientific knowledge."

He cited that the richest southern state ranks lower in per capita income than the poorest state outside the region.

"Even in prosperous 1929 southern farm people received an average gross income of only $186 a year, as compared with $528 per farmer elsewhere in the nation."

Four Win Recognition.

Recognition was given the work of four notable southerners with award of plaques to Henry Perkins Stuckey, director of the Georgia experiment station; Arthur Benjamin Conner, director of the Texas station; Charles Ansel Moore, of the Tennessee station, and Charles Burgess Williams, of the agronomy department of North Carolina State.

Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System of Georgia, made the presentations. Dr. Connor, who is ill, was represented by S. H. Yarnell, of the Texas station.

The ceremony followed delivery of an address on "Higher Education in the Defense Program," by Chancellor Sanford.

In 18 sectional meetings virtually every phase of the general farm problem was explained. Among the subjects discussed were economics, rural sociology, engineering, soils, animal husbandry, dairying, forestry, home economics, marketing, soil conservation, poultry raising and vocational training.

Milk Production.

Importance of milk-producing was presented by C. G. Cushman, of Clemson's extension service.

"Whether the south will just grow up like Topsy, by the trial and error method," he said, "or have a healthy, sensible and stable growth, is going to depend very largely upon the direction given this growth by us."

"Obviously if we are to produce dairy products in competition with other sections, we must compete on a roughage basis."

Comparative values of silages, an important technical consideration in dairying and livestock raising, were cited by Dr. A. L. Shealy, head of the animal husbandry department, University of Florida.

Sessions will continue through tomorrow, principally at the Ansley hotel.

Recognition Asked For De Soto Route

General assembly recognition of the De Soto expedition through Georgia was sought yesterday as an event "of too much historical significance, too important and too romantic to be allowed to pass."

Representatives Ferguson and Suggs, of Sumter, offered a resolution to designate the nearest highway to the best known route of DeSoto's army as the "DeSoto trail."

This highway runs from Bainbridge to Albany, Leesburg, Cordele, Abbeville, Hawkinsville, Dublin, and on to Augusta.

Movie's 'Man of Year' Likes To Travel and Is Not in Love.

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

Yes, girls, Stirling Hayden is just as handsome and as exciting as you would imagine. He has that appeal to the fair sex and he's a two-fisted guy.

He looks just like he did when he sailed into Tahiti or Honolulu or some of the many ports of call on his around-the-world voyage, except that he's let his hair grow and the Hollywood beauticians repaired a cracked tooth for him. The seaman with many knots to his credit wore his hair cropped down pretty closely so the wind and the rain wouldn't worry him. He wore tennis shoes, white duck trousers, or khaki shorts with no shirt. That is, before the movie scouts picked him up.

Now he's cited as the movie capital's find of the year. And he has all the qualities to make him measure right up to the top. He has a charming personality, no sophistication except that required for a gentleman, and he's an all-around guy. He's more at home in the $37.50 suit he bought in New York last winter than in the seven-times more costly clothes furnished him by Paramount. He has traveled all over the world with a little handbag and a sailor's pouch and now he's swinging through the United States with a wardrobe trunk and several large traveling bags.

He received me in his room at the Georgian Terrace in a pair of pajamas. They were just plain blue and white striped pajamas, over which he wore a figured print silk robe with bright knitted house slippers. But therein lies his charm. He's not a glamour boy, but he is an American charm master.

He's not married—not engaged—not in love. He was once engaged to a daughter of the American consul at Tahiti, but found that it just didn't work 7,000 miles away.

He's looking for one special girl. She's to be "just as much at home on a sailboat drenched in water as she is at the Stork Club." He has her pictured in his mind, thinks the consul's daughter would have filled the bill—if she were not so far away—but he's still looking.

Navy Air Safety Award Given Canal Zone Unit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt presented the Herbert Schiff Memorial trophy today to Lieutenant Commander H. B. Miller, commanding officer of the naval aviation unit which had the best safety record last year.

Miller received the award for Patrol Squadron 33, attached to patrol wing three, Canal Zone area, which operated without an accident from July 1, 1939, to June 30, 1940.

The trophy was donated in 1925 by William Schiff, of New York city, in memory of his brother, Lieutenant (junior grade) Herbert Schiff, Naval Reserve officer, who was killed while on duty at the Norfolk naval air station in 1924.

The Camp Fire Girls' fifteen annual Do-Nut drive was officially launched yesterday afternoon when more than 500 girls received final instructions on the sale, which is to be held from February 8 to 22. The proceeds will go toward improvements at Camp Toccoa and to build up individual group treasuries for activities among the Camp Fire Girls.

District chairmen who have been appointed to receive orders from group leaders are Mrs. Ben Aske, Mrs. G. A. Lafitte, Mrs. Bert Dursey, Mrs. F. M. Cossitt and Mrs. A. E. Wilson.

Every Camp Fire Girl has agreed to sell a minimum of 15 dozen do-nuts as her part in the annual sale. The girls who sell 50 dozen will be initiated into the "Mystic Order of the Do-Nuts" at an overnight party to be held in April at Camp Toccoa. All girls who sell 200 dozen do-nuts will receive a one-week trip to Camp Toccoa during the 1941 season, with the girl selling the highest number receiving two weeks at camp, in addition to being crowned the Do-Nut Queen.

Shurling Goes To Washington For Conference

Hinesville Project Among Subjects Which Will Be Discussed.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Francis Shurling, Georgia director of the office of government reports, was in Washington today for a series of conferences which will include discussion of progress on the Camp Stewart, Hinesville, construction project in connection with the location there of a huge army anti-aircraft training center. Asked specifically whether or not his mission included discussion of alleged labor difficulties on the construction work, Shurling stated: "I cannot say that I am, nor can I say that I am not." However, Shurling said that to his knowledge the "labor situation is very peaceful." This conformed with comment of army labor relations officials, who said they have no report of labor difficulties at the camp, and pointed out that they would have immediate information on any such developments. It has been claimed that construction is being hampered through union fee collection activities. Shurling also intimated that he may confer with officials here relative to the transfer of farmers residing within the firing range of the proposed center, but declined to comment on this subject as well.

Dear Mr. Hull:

In conducting Cooking Schools in many states I have inspected some of the notable dairies, pasteurizing and bottling plants in America.

But until my visit to Atlanta, I have never seen such ideal factors for the production of safe, rich, health-giving milk as you have at the Irvindale Farms Dairy.

I did not know that any dairy in the South had selected its herd of cows from the nation's finest dairy cattle, as you have done. Equally gratifying is your sparkling, modern plant with its wonderfully clean and efficient equipment for the perfect pasteurization and bot-

Hygiene Group Cites Need for Syphilis Clinics

Additional Facilities To Be Asked of City and Foundations.

Need for additional clinical facilities in Atlanta and Fulton county to combat venereal disease was brought out yesterday at sessions of the Georgia Social Hygiene Council which discussed vice and the relation of national defense measures to spread of the menace.

Councilman James E. Jackson, of the first ward, advised the group to bring pressure on the city council about midway, when funds will be available, and Frank Carter, president of the Chamber of Commerce, suggested various foundations well might contribute also.

A youth session, with representatives of the Atlanta universities and Jewish organizations participating, completed the program.

During the day the conferees heard recited that 5,837 cases of syphilis were reported last year here, that 10 per cent of examined food handlers proved infected, that the city has at least 1,000 prostitutes and that hotels and roadhouses participate in their operations.

Speakers included Dr. Ralph E. Wager, Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, state health officer; Dr. Francis J. Weber, Dr. J. M. Walton, Dr. R. F. Payne, the Rev. Stuart R. Oglesby, Mrs. R. H. McDougall and Charles M. Evans, president of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Dr. Oglesby declared ministers were prepared to combat the problem through use of church organizations, but that the laity was unwilling, from lack of information. Evans deprecated sale of proprietary remedies for venereal diseases. Mrs. McDougall urged adequate recreation facilities for youth.

Annapolis Exams Scheduled Here

Applicants must be between the ages of 17 and 24. Applications are obtainable through communication with Ramspeck.

Palmer To Ask For Additional Housing Funds

Seeks $156,750,000 More To Provide Shelters in Defense Areas.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(P)—C. F. Palmer, defense housing coordinator, said today congress would be asked for $156,750,000 for additional defense housing.

A request also will be made, he said, for a change in the federal housing act to permit federal underwriting of houses in defense areas without requiring any down payment.

This would be financed by an REC loan of $10,000,000, which, Palmer said, could be used to underwrite $100,000,000 in mortgages.

Palmer said that Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, had approved the loan.

Palmer said temporary shelters would be provided through the use of large trailers or mobile units and of ships which might be tied up at coastal points where there is a need for housing.

Weary of Night Life, Homesick Legislators Consider Quitting

Prospect of Adjournment a Week From Tomorrow Is Bruited About, But Leaders Deny Any Such Move.

By LUKE GREENE.

Homesick legislators are toying with the idea that the general assembly may complete its major business at the end of 30 days and do the unprecedented thing of adjourning a week from tomorrow, serving only half of their regular session. Administration leaders stoutly deny that there is any move on to adjourn the legislature earlier than usual, but the prospect is whispered here and there in capitol corridors and hotel lobbies.

The regular 60-day session began on January 23, and members of the house and senate have served approximately two weeks of this period, in addition to the 10-day organization meeting.

Vital Bills Finished.
During this time the administration leaders have pushed through most of the measures regarded as vital to Governor Talmadge and his program.

The legislators themselves have settled down to a humdrum existence, agreeing that there isn't much to look forward to in the way of contested legislation. No opposition bloc has been able to muster any considerable strength and the two houses now are voting almost as a unit.

Randall Evans Jr., speaker of the house, said yesterday rumors had been circulating concerning the 30-day session, but that the administration was not behind such a move as far as he knew.

Local Bills Waiting.
"Many members have bills which they want to get passed, and I presume we will stay here until we finish," he said.

There is a possibility that some of the legislators might object to the financial losses they would suffer from a 30-day session. They receive a salary of $7 per day with traveling expenses to and from their homes.

On the other hand, most of them insist they are making a financial sacrifice to serve in the legislature, since they can make more money in their private businesses back home.

Then, too, there is the question of sleep. Some who are accustomed to going to bed at sundown when they are on the farm argue that Atlanta's night life is getting them down.

Big Words Confuse Senator Edwards

Dictionary definitions became a side issue in the senate yesterday during debate on a bill to curb labor unions.

Defending the unions, Senator Lanier, of Augusta, referred to "innuendo" by Senator Edwards, of Valdosta, and tossed in a "philippic" for good measure.

Up bounced Edwards, inquiring the meaning of the big words, only to be told he had been elected on the assumption that he "understood the ordinary use of the English language."

"I'm not running a school," peppered Lanier. "I refer you to the dictionary and you will find innuendo under the I's, not the E's."

"Two-thirds of this senate don't know what he's talking about," Edwards complained.

Hapeville To Lose Swimming Pool

The high cost of water is going to make Hapeville's new WPA swimming pool just another dry and expensive hole in the ground when summer comes.

The city council decided to abandon work on the pool after hearing estimates by engineers as to what it would cost to make the pool watertight and safe for swimmers.

They found it would cost $10,750 to install filters and buy the necessary water from Atlanta.

And well diggers want $24,750 to provide an independent water source. Officials decided the city couldn't afford either.

The pool is part of a $147,267 city park, $5,000 of which is estimated to have gone for the pool.

Mass Promotion of 1,013 Captains Is Announced

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The War Department announced today the mass promotion of 1,013 new field officers.

The department said that 1,013 captains taken from almost every branch of the Army had been raised to the temporary grade of major as of January 31.

At the same time the department announced 78 other promotions to temporary rank covering grades all the way from first lieutenant to colonel.

Talmadge Signs First of Checks Under New Bill

Teachers' Salaries Have Right-of-Way in Early Disbursements.

By LUKE GREENE.

Juggling his cigar nervously and beaming like a new moon, Governor Talmadge yesterday scribbled his signature on the first checks made possible by the new budget bill which permitted him to take $3,598,511.11 in surpluses from state departments and redistribute $3,394,893.15 of this amount to the schools and other spots where it was needed.

The chief executive was in a cheerful mood as he listened to the financial report presented him by State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. He glanced down at the figure showing the total amount saved from all departments and his eyes sparkled with triumph.

Although he has been extremely hesitant about writing checks since his inauguration, he appeared to be wielding his pen with abandon yesterday as he wrote "Eugene Talmadge" on checks for school teachers' salaries.

Funds for Schools.
Most of the surplus funds—a total of $2,699,579.37, went to the Education Department.

From the Highway Department, for example, he took away $1,186,932.58, but fiscal officials explained this department will be reimbursed when the road-building season begins in the summer and the schools close.

From the Welfare Department came $794,093.98 which cannot be used now for pensions but will be returned later when the department is ready to use it for this purpose.

The "Man From Sugar Creek" took time out to explain just what he was doing.

"My first act under the authority of the budget bill just enacted by the general assembly and approved by me as Governor is to provide sufficient funds to pay in full the January teachers' salaries amounting to $1,500,000 for the month," he said.

Teachers' Back Pay.
"At the same time I am notifying the school authorities that the February and March teachers' salaries will be provided for after the 25th of each month, and I am definitely notifying the school authorities that the indebtedness of $3,921,623.28 due the school systems for the 1938-1939 term will be available on the afternoon of March 1."

"I am also providing sufficient funds to the Milledgeville state hospital for them to liquidate their indebtedness of $242,396.03 and expect them hereafter to maintain the institution on a cash basis."

"I am also providing the necessary funds to the State Board of Penal Corrections for them to liquidate their indebtedness of $160,826.48 and also expect the penal institution to be operated on a full cash basis."

"All other agencies will be maintained in accordance with the amount approved on the budgets."

The Governor said he would take up the budget of the board of regents with the state auditor next week. There were strong indications that he would do some trimming on the regents' finance sheet.

Rail Executives Assemble Here

Fifteen presidents or high-ranking executives of southeastern railroads discussed routine questions here yesterday in a conference at the Trust Company of Georgia. The luncheon afterward at the Capital City Club.

Present were Fitzgerald Hall, president of the N. C. & St. L., chairman of the conference; C. A.

Wickersham, A. & W. P.; Colonel B. L. Bugg, A. B. & C.; H. D. Pollard and A. B. Lovett, Savannah, trustees, Central of Georgia; J. B. Hill L. & N.; H. W. Stanley, Tennessee-Central; L. H. Phetteplace, Clinchfield; A. A. Jackson, Florida East Coast; Buford Gordon, N. C. & St. L.; secretary; George B. Elliott, A. C. L.; J. B. Parrish, C. & O.; W. G. Jones, S. A. L.; H. A. DeBottis, Southern, and Normal Call, R. F. & P.

Two Additional State Offices Face Abolition

The administration's economy spotlight yesterday fell on the State Department of Entomology and the office of the state veterinarian, two branches of government recognized by few city dwellers but known to nearly every farmer in Georgia.

While Senator J. H. Milhollin, chairman, prepared to call a public hearing before his agriculture committee, which is studying a bill to abolish the entomology department, two additional bills went into the senate hopper yesterday that would eliminate the office of state veterinarian and give his duties, along with those of the entomologist, to the commissioner of agriculture.

The decision to hold a public hearing came after Milhollin received almost 100 telegrams and messages either endorsing or protesting the proposal.

The entomology department was created in 1920 and has been fighting plant diseases and pests, including eradication of the Japanese beetle and the development of cotton strains capable of resisting the boll weevil. The director is appointed by the Governor. Since 1927 it has been directed by M. S. Yeomans.

Under the pending legislation the state entomologist and the veterinarian will be named by the commissioner of agriculture with the approval of the Governor. Both positions will carry the same salary they now pay, $4,200, under the proposal.

The entomology department employs a staff of 28 persons and has a quarterly budget of $23,896.06 for state-wide operation. The office of the veterinarian employs about 20 persons with a quarterly budget of $10,239.35. Dr. J. M. Sutton is the present veterinarian.

Lot of Comedy in Davis Film

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5.—Bette Davis falls into a cactus bed (for "The Bride Came C. O. D."), shrieks, clutches the affected part of her anatomy. And proves her right to the "best-actress-in-Hollywood" title once more. The "cactus" is made of rubber! I fall into it a couple of times myself—to make sure Bette really was acting. Later, for the close-up of the cactus sticking into Bette, they use toothpicks—but these are stuck only as far as the first lady's coat!

The newlywed Miss Davis is in high spirits and kids everyone on the set. Before going into her slapping scene with Jimmy Cagney she practices her dialogue in a broad New England accent. Everyone giggles, except Jimmy, who, in the script, is supposed to slap her back and say, "That's how the Eskimos kiss." But Cagney has decided against slapping Bette. Not for reasons of chivalry. He plans something much more painful, but asks me not to tell it because it would give away the joke (?).

This is the slap-happiest picture for both Miss Davis and Cagney. When they are not tumbling into the cactus or hitting each other, Bette is a spoiled society darling (her lips have a painted petulant droop) who is saved from eloping with a "heel" by Aviator Cagney, who promises delivery to her father at the rate of $10 per Davis' pound. They crash in the desert. When she tries to get away, Cagney shoots her with a sling-shot. There's a lot more, but you get the idea. And, of course, they marry in the end—and fight happily ever after.

Priscilla Lane is receiving a million dollars from Jeffrey Lynn in "Miss Wheelwright Discovers America." She yawns—which is not in the script. "I've been shouting my head off for the past three days, and I'm exhausted," Priscilla explains. She plays a salesgirl in a bargain basement. Lynn is a lawyer bringing the million-dollar check. (I love pictures in which the poor working girls get suddenly rich, don't you?) "What would you do if you really had a million?" this columnist queries Miss Lane. "I wouldn't believe it," she replies; then adds, "I'd faint."

Lynn's mind cannot comprehend so much money. "I'll settle for $250,000," he says. "This is my second big chance in pictures." (The first of the "Four Daughters" series is number one.) "It's different from the usual sweet-natured parts I've been getting," he explains. Jeffrey preferred suspension rather than a repeat of sweetness in "Singapore Woman." The suspension cost him the leading role opposite Jean Arthur in "The Devil and Miss Jones." "After they had changed the script for me," moans Jeffrey. To the younger players in Hollywood I give this advice—don't strike for more money and/or better pictures until you are a big-shot. It has never worked out.

Jane Russell, 19-year-old newcomer star in Howard Hughes' "The Outlaw," talks about her sensational photographs that appeared recently in a picture magazine. "They promised to dress them up a bit—but didn't," she says. Jane is now known as the leader of the sweater set in Hollywood—taking precedence over Lana Turner. She's a nice kid and has the appeal of Jean Harlow, who was discovered also by Howard Hughes. Another discovery of Hughes—Pat O'Brien—is on the set paying a visit to the aviator-producer.

"Ten years ago," Pat tells me, "Howard paid $10,000 to release me from a stage contract and brought me to Hollywood for 'The Front Page.' I've been very lucky," he says to Jane and Jack ("Billy the Kid") Butel, "I hope you'll be as lucky."

It's interesting to watch Hughes making a star of Miss Russell. She has a bad habit of licking her lips before a "take." "Remember your lips," he warns her. Every movement of her hands and body, every inflection of her voice is dictated by Hughes. She sometimes does a "take" 50 times before the director-producer is satisfied. It won't be his fault if the girl faints.

Give Dogs The Proper Care

A healthy, handsome dog, a credit to his mistress who, you may be sure, knows all she should know about taking care of dogs. At this time of year, especially, she's guard against the dread distemper, a disease that is particularly dangerous for puppies, but which strikes dogs of all ages.

The simple form of distemper may start much like a cold—with congested eyes and nose, indifference to food, a general air of "poor me."

The best course is to be watchful, treat symptoms as they develop. The fever that is always present at the start of distemper may be reduced by giving a dose of four parts castor oil to one part brandy. Foods should be light—milk and beef tea, boned chicken, tripe and boneless fish. If digestion seems very upset, try the white of an egg mixed with a tablespoon of water.

Other forms of distemper are more complicated, but you can easily learn the symptoms, know when to call upon a veterinarian. With a sound constitution—and careful nursing from you—your dog has a fine chance of pulling through.

A proper diet is one of the best ways to build up a dog's resistance to illness—and it goes a long way toward preventing many ailments, too.

That's why you want to be sure your dog gets lots of meat, milk and eggs and a portion of vegetables—that his diet isn't overloaded with starches or rich foods. And during the winter months an added safeguard is cod-liver oil.

Our 40-page booklet, "How to Raise and Train Your Dog," gives two chapters on your dog's health, how you can prevent and care for his ills. Has expert advice on feeding and grooming, also tells how to train and housebreak your dog, teach him clever tricks. Lists popular breeds.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, HOW TO RAISE AND TRAIN YOUR DOG. To The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

MY DAY: Youths Work as Government Interns

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—I was interested last evening to talk to four more of the young people who are down here as government interns for the winter. I think I have mentioned these young people before. Ex-Congressman Davenport shepherds this group and I usually see them in one large gathering some evening during the winter.

This year it happens that a number of them had some tie with friends of mine and I have had an opportunity to see five of them more informally. They are all extremely interested and seem to be getting a great deal out of their actual work in some government department or in assisting in one of the congressional offices.

An amusing incident was the discovery by Mrs. Robert Baker, whose husband is professor of astronomy at the University of Illinois, and who lives in Urbana, that one of the young people was the daughter of another professor who lived only two blocks from the Baker home. They had to come to Washington, however, to meet!

Because I had been unable to see some of the "March of Time" movies, I asked to have them shown over again for my benefit last evening. The one in which Mr. Quentin Reynolds is the narrator, that begins with the singing of carols on Christmas Eve the night when Mr. Reynolds was starting back to the United States, was one of the most moving newsreels I have ever seen.

How utterly weary people must be, sleeping night after night, herded like animals on the tube platforms in London! I could not help wondering how they could go on day after day to work with such unrefreshing rest. To me, it is air at night that matters almost as much as sleep.

We also saw a short reel showing what is being done under the Maritime Commission to encourage the building up of our merchant marine and the training of our men for this service. It is a most interesting film and one which I hope will be widely distributed commercially.

Miss Mary Margaret McBride spent last night with us and left this morning by plane from New York City. She has been in Florida on an advertising program, but we talked on much besides Florida because I always find her a charming and delightful person with a wide range of interests.

I lunched today with Mrs. Frank Walker, wife of the postmaster general, and it was a delightful party. Soon this round of gaiety with the wives of the cabinet will be brought to a close. In the spring, there are lunches for various congressional wives' groups, but they are not scheduled quite so closely together.

I had word from New York state this morning that they have had really cold weather and snow enough to do some skiing even around our cottage. I cannot help wishing that there was time to stay there and tramp the hills for two or three days. Snow in the city is something we always want to see melt away, but snow in the country is beautiful for a long time.

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

by
George Rector
Food Consultant
Wilson & Co.

"Dear Mr. Rector" (writes Mrs. E. E.): "Recently New York hostesses have taken up in a big way the plan of letting guests make their own appetizers. At such a party last week, the electric grill was kept jumping, turning out bacon with the best flavor! Our hostess said it was Wilson's new bacon. Please tell me more about this."

To Mrs. E. E. and the other bacon-flavor experts: The full name of this new bacon is "Wilson's CERTIFIED Family Style Sliced Bacon." It is sliced thicker than usual, then packed back tightly, bolt upright, on the rind. This keeps it in its goodness and flavor. Your dealer has this better bacon, or will get it for you.

BACON IS THE MAKIN' OF BETTER BUDGET DINNERS

Bacon Dinner Grill. Arrange on a "sizzle platter" the following: slices of Wilson's Certified Family Style Sliced Bacon, thick slices of unpeeled tomatoes, mounds of hominy (both dotted with Clear Brook Butter) and triangles of toast, sprinkled with grated Wilson's Certified Cheese. Place 3½ inches below broiler (temperature about 350° F.). Broil and serve on the sizzle platter.

Noodle-Bacon Casserole

Cook ½ pound of noodles. Drain and keep hot in a covered casserole. Dice and fry twelve slices of Wilson's Certified Bacon. (I suggest the Family Style in the economy two-pound package.) Sauté gently in the bacon fat ¼ pound peeled mushrooms. Add mushrooms, bacon, 2 tablespoons of the bacon fat and ½ teaspoon paprika to the noodles. Toss lightly till thoroughly mixed. Serves 6.

"CORNEO BEEF AND . . ." Goes Ultra

The soul of Jiggs, with all his yearning for good old corned beef and cabbage, licks in every man. So try serving him this combination made with Wilson's Certified Corned Beef Hash, which is a hash after my own heart because it is both richly meaty and deftly seasoned.

Press one can of hash into a buttered ring mold. Unmold. Brush the hash ring with melted Clear Brook Butter and brown in the oven. Fill the center of the hash ring with buttered cooked Brussels Sprouts, and serve.

CHANGE YOUR SALADS!

Not hard to do! Simply change your mayonnaise. Start with Wilson's Savory Mayonnaise, then add:

For green salads—minced parsley or water-cress.

For fruit salads—fruit juices (orange, pineapple, or grapefruit), or chopped nuts.

For vegetable salads—minced Frankfurters, or a few drops of Worcestershire.

See you next week with a Valentine idea.

—G. R.

The Wilson Label protects your table.

Should youth take a holiday in a warmer climate for the duration of the winter, you'd see styles like this one in her wardrobe. Joan Leslie looks cunning in this playsuit with trunks and front of robin's egg blue, and back and sleeves of banana crepe. Buttons of the lighter shade close the top and left leg.

Young Couples Take Pride In Owning Their Homes

By Caroline Chatfield.

When the hard-boiled businessman tells us of the weaker sex that a home is the most costly luxury on earth, that renting is much cheaper and therefore better business procedure for a young couple, we can't answer back in terms of economics, though we know one window who has it figured out on paper that she is saving money every year by buying her home with rent money. Also she has figured that in the end she will have an investment which she can turn into a dividend payer any time she chooses.

Maybe as a dollar proposition these men are right when they say it's expensive to own a home. Nevertheless it is an extravagance which we would recommend to every young couple that gets married and we are prepared to say why: Just as the young bride and the young groom take a keen pride in saying "my husband," "my wife," so the two of them are somewhat chummy at being able to say "our home." There's a source of pride in simple ownership that's good for their self.

While we've always realized the deep significance of home-owning from the sentimental and pleasurable point of view, we never thought the subject had any particular political importance until recently, when we read an article by a famous sociologist in which he said that not only was communism bred in crowded tenements and city apartments, but could actually be cured by inducing the Communists to go to the country, buy cottages, taste the pleasures of home-owning and savor the satisfaction of contact with their own soil.

Deficiency in the Intake Of Vitamins Impairs The Condition of Teeth

By Dr. William Brady.

All obesity with glycosuria is not diabetes and all gingivitis is not pyorrhea—but if there is chronic or long-standing inflammation, tenderness and soreness in the gums what difference whether it is dubbed interstitial gingivitis, periodontal disease, Riggs' disease, receding gums or pyorrhea alveolaris? You had better do whatever you can do about it before the degeneration or atrophy progresses so far that there will no longer be any point in quarrelling over a name for the condition.

Prolonged moderate deficiency in the intake or assimilation of vitamin D, vitamin A and in some cases vitamin C, with prolonged or habitual shortage of calcium and phosphorus, and sometimes shortage in vitamin B complex and iron, is the fundamental cause of the disease, degeneration or atrophy of jaws, gums and teeth designated by your choice of the names given in the preceding paragraph, or Fouchard's disease if the more familiar names do not suit you.

Infection of gums and teeth is of secondary importance, yet a factor which must be considered in any successful plan of treatment. Infection must be combated by both preventive measures and by drainage of any abscesses or pus pockets which may occur from visit to visit. Of course, the regular care of the dentist is indispensable in the treatment of the condition. Even the application of diluted Talbot's solution (Glycerite of Iodine and Zinc Iodide, N. F.) at intervals of 10 days or so, which I recommend in nearly all such cases, requires instruction by the dentist—it is a knack to apply it to teeth and gums without spreading it to the mucous membrane elsewhere in the mouth.

Them as Has 'em Should Use 'em. The infant, child or adult who has teeth should use them for cutting, cracking, tearing and grinding food. All of the teeth, on both sides of the mouth. If any of the teeth are not used they tend to undergo atrophy.

Exercise of the jaws, the teeth, the gums, in mastication promotes good nutrition of jaw, teeth and gums and tends to prevent atrophy or degeneration of jaw, gums and teeth.

People who lose a tooth and fail to have the space immediately filled with a functionally efficient denture of one kind or another deliberately invite degeneration of the jaws, gums and teeth on the unused side of the mouth when they try to do all or most of their masticating with the other side of the mouth.

People who have teeth extracted and then go for weeks or months before getting a bridge or plate or whatever artificial contrivance is needed are almost certain to suffer early atrophy.

Marietta Group To Present 'The Merry Widow' in Atlanta

• • • TOM BRUMBY, who lives in Marietta, but is equally well known in Atlanta because of the admirable job he does as organist and choir director at St. Philip's cathedral, last year directed a very creditable production of Franz Lehár's "The Merry Widow" in his home city. The Junior Welfare League of Marietta sponsored the production, the proceeds helping to continue the league's work in providing milk for the undernourished children and furnishing many other charitable services for the underprivileged.

Now comes the interesting announcement that the singers whom Tom directed are coming to Atlanta and will again present under his direction two performances of "The Merry Widow" for the building fund of the cathedral. These performances will be given at the Atlanta Woman's Club on Thursday and Friday evenings, February 20 and 21, and will be sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the cathedral. The proceeds will form the nucleus of a building fund which is now being raised for the erection of a new church school building for St. Philip's parish. The present church school, erected in 1933 several months after the cathedral moved its headquarters to the present site at Peachtree road and Andrews drive, has proven inadequate for the many children who are now registered there, and plans are under way for an entirely new building fronting on the Peachtree road side of the church property.

St. Philip's is nearly 100 years old. Its church building was a hospital for Confederate soldiers in the sixties, and the Federal army later stabled its horses there when the city was captured. The location on the south side of Atlanta was retained until the northward movement of the city made it desirable in 1933 to acquire the present site and erect a new home for the congregation.

• • • "BECAUSE WE ARE AMERICANS," that stirring and patriotic song written by Atlanta's own Emily Robinson Head, will be one of the numbers played today by the United States Navy Band over a national radio hook-up.

The program, which will originate in Washington at the Navy Yard, will be heard over the Mutual Broadcasting System at 1 o'clock E. S. T. (12 o'clock Atlanta time). According to Emily, it will be a very special broadcast and her song will be the very first one on the program.

The song is an inspiring military march and as the tune strains come over the airwaves, a special recording will be made here in order that Emily may have a permanent record of the program.

• • • TWO stunning-looking matrons, Mrs. William Bailey Lamar and Mrs. Worcester, presided at the coffee urns during the reception Tuesday evening which followed the Music Club's presentation of the Kolisch String Quartet. They were skillful enough in this hospitable gesture to take part in the rather excited talk around them about the Bela Bartok opus, the middle feature in a program which happily began with Mozart and ended with Schubert.

Our music critic has told of

The lovely belles pictured above, Miss Mary Bishop, left, and Miss Helen Woodward, have been chosen to lead the grand march at the Panhellenic formal this evening, the affair being the first of the three-day series of midwinter dances sponsored by the Georgia Tech Interfraternity Council at the Tech gymnasium. Miss Bishop will be escorted by Harold Van Arsdale, treasurer of the council, while Miss Woodward will be the date of Ed Marshall, the council president.

the highly provocative character of the Bartok quartet, the last word in modernism, which flattered some of its hearers that Atlanta should so promptly be given opportunity to pass its own judgment on this stimulating last word in modernism, while others seemed to regard it as a personal affront. One discerning listener took it in his stride as a humorous experience, while betraying his own politics when he called it, with scorn, "this New Deal music." Mrs. Charles Dowman, who wrote the program notes, complained that she had been unable to secure any advance information on the distinguished Hungarian's latest.

"Don't worry," she was told. "Probably Bartok himself does not know what it is all about. We wouldn't have missed it for anything, but any attempt at annotation would have been 'gilding the lily' (in reverse)."

• • • ONE of the loveliest blondes to grace the Tech midwinter dances which began this evening will be Mary Clapp, who will forsake her studies at Wesleyan College in Macon long enough to attend the brilliant series.

Accompanying Mary upon her arrival this afternoon will be her classmates, Sarah Louise Turner, of Columbus, and Eloise Ainsworth, of Asheville, N. C., formerly of Atlanta, who will be her guests at the B. K. Clapp residence on The Prado until Sunday.

Eloise, already a familiar figure here, has scores of friends who will learn of her arrival with interest. Sarah Louise, Sally hears, has more than her share of charm, and is certain to be pursued relentlessly by the stagline.

The dances will open with the Panhellenic formal this evening, which will be followed by a freshman tea-dance and a junior prom tomorrow. Saturday's social calendar will be featured by a sophomore hop in the form of a tea-dance, the brilliant senior ball to take place that evening.

Tech fraternities will entertain at parties galore throughout the week, and a veritable avalanche of visiting belles will make their appearance here to attend the festivities.

Popular Girls' High Graduate Combines Beauty and Brains

By HELEN CLARKE.

Pretty Marion Hogan belies the oft quoted adage, "beautiful but dumb!" A January graduate of Girls' High school, Marion carried away all the honors, and you have only to glance at the above photograph to realize that she combines both beauty and brains.

She is photographed with the coveted faculty award cup, which is annually presented to the best all-around student, and represents the highest honor obtainable at Girls' High.

The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Hogan, of West End, Marion has proven herself quite versatile, for in addition to the cup, she received the medal for leadership in athletics and the Bausch and Lomb honorary science award. Not only did she receive recognition for her scholastic ability, but she holds the school attendance record for not having been absent for six years.

At the graduation exercises which were held on January 29, Marion was chosen to speak on the program, an honor which is accorded the two leading members of the senior class. The subject given her was "Building for Defense," which you will admit is a rather formidable topic for a 17-year-old.

As for Marion's beauty, it combines merry blue eyes, wavy brown hair with golden lights, and a flawless complexion. And she is as sought-after among her contemporaries of the school set as she is pretty and accomplished.

Which is something of a record in "any man's language!"

The honor guest was Mrs. Lee Shackelford, of Wilmington, Del., the former Miss Elizabeth See, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard See, at their home on Westminster drive here.

Mrs. Howard See assisted in receiving guests. A silver bowl filled with red carnations and white snapdragons centered the table, flanked on either side by silver candelabra holding unlighted red tapers. Artistic arrangements of similar flowers beautified the home, the valentine motif having prevailed.

The Flower Study Club met recently with Mrs. J. M. Monfort, 3870 Club drive. Mrs. Charles LeRoux gave a talk to the members on roses.

Jean Tells Sayre That Vivian Has Threatened To Take Away Her Child

SYNOPSIS. Dazzled by Vivian Forrest's wealth and love-making, Jean Seiden marries him although she has loved Brandon Sayre, an explorer. She soon learns Vivian is stubborn, imperious and he makes no effort to keep her from his various love affairs. But he is very proud of his beautiful wife and is extremely jealous. His invitation to Sayre to a house party at palatial Forrest Fell on Long Island puzzles his half-brother, Austin. Other guests are Anne Fraser, Suzy Kirk and Jeter Haskell. All are fencing enthusiasts and are practicing for a club tournament. Vivian and Jean are experts and he invites upon a daily 15-minute practice period with her. Even baby Florine comes in for his jealousy—he had wanted a boy—and he takes delight in calling Jean away from the nursery to fence with him. Sayre's rival makes Jean realize her love for Brandon is not dead but she reminds herself she is Vivian's wife. Vivian astounds her by bringing a guest Esmeralda Kane, a pretty, blond movie actress, and insisting that she be seated at the head of the table opposite him and given Florine's choice nursery room. Bravely, Esme tells Jean it is nice that she share the love of such a wonderful man. She tells her she must have better or return to New York, but winds up by making violent love to her. When she asks if he is going to keep his promise to divorce Jean and marry her, he says this is impossible now. Jean's keen mind enables her to handle a difficult situation well. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VIII. "Oh, Vivian," she cried, "you do love me, don't you?" "Have I ever given you reason to doubt it?" "No, but you never before gave me such a reason to believe it! What will Jean say when you ask her?" "I shan't ask her, I shall tell her. It doesn't matter what she says. My word is law in this house." "And you love me better than you do her?" "I do not. Make no mistake, you are a caprice, a temporary. I love Jean ten thousand times more than I love you, but just now you are my whimsy. And I think the plan I suggested will be a lot of fun." Esme gazed at him, an odd look in her eyes. Then she smiled, and said, "Yes, it will be. When will you tell her?" "When it suits my convenience. And you're not to say a word about it, until I say you may. Indeed, if you tell anybody, I will change the plan." "Oh, I won't tell. You don't seem to care much about your child, do you?" "I had hoped for a boy. No, I don't want any share in the little girl." "If you did, you could get it only over Jean's dead body. And we don't want any murders around here. I say, Viv, can I have a wedding ring?" "You can have a diamond half-hoop, if you want it, but it would look rather silly, because it would not mean anything." "How cruel you are to me! If Jean should die, would you marry me?" "I would not! Here's Haskell coming. You string along with him for a while. I have a practice date." "Oh, my darling Peter! Come to my rescue, do! This man is as cruel as a Toltec, or whatever I mean! Take me away, Peter, and pet me up." Haskell had not basked in the sunshine of Esme's smiles as much as he wanted to, and he took her off willingly. Forrest went back to the house to interview his new valet. In a fit of ill temper he had discharged his long-suffering and faithful Parsons, and now Molton reigned in his stead. The position was a good one. An assistant was employed to help with the less dignified labors, perquisites were plenty and Mr. Forrest was more often good-natured than not. But he had a high temper, and Molton flattered himself that he knew how to deal with temperamental employers. As Vivian strode along he met Jean walking with Brandon Sayre. He saluted them smartly, gave Jean a quizzical smile and passed on. "What's the matter with him?" Sayre asked. "I don't know. He's in the oddest sort of mood." "Are you going to stand for that fly-by-night much longer?" "Brandon, don't you know that success is in the silences? Don't you suppose I know what I'm doing—and why?" "I am not a gossip, Jean dear, but Suzy told me that Vivian had taken your child away from the house? Did he do that?" "Why yes, but he put her with her nurse, in one of the prettiest of the guest cottages. They are comfortable there, and I go there whenever I want to." "And get soundly rated for it! Jean, you must give in to go to that man! The more patient Esmeralda you are, the more you will have to be. Do assert yourself! You know I think only of your good when I say this." "I know that, Brandon. But you can't understand. You think I am a mean-spirited and cowardly wife. But it is not I. I've only one object in life—to protect my child. He threatens to take her away from me—" "What? You can't mean that!" "I do mean it, and if he ever does that, I will kill him, though it be the last act of my life." "Don't say such things, dear. You must get a divorce. His cruelty to you is sufficient cause." "No, he won't let me do that. You see—no, you can't see, for your idea of love is gentleness; his is fierceness. He really does love me—more than he loves any one else in the world. These affairs of his are only the most passing interests. Esme has lasted longer than most, because she has that charming air of ingenuousness which, when you know her life, is a sort of paradox." "I don't care if it's a paradigm. You must not have her here. You must put her out." "It's more likely that he would put you out. He has already begun to warn me that I must let you alone."

"Don't be silly, darling. I will not let you alone, whatever your orders. I will be with you and keep you with me, until I make him notice it."

"Then we'll have an understanding, and perhaps—fight a duel."

"Oh, Brandon, don't do anything like that! He would kill you!"

"You rate my skill so low?" "No, but he won't."

"You can't say it, your gentle soul won't let you. But I know what you mean. You mean he won't fence fair."

"Something like that. And—he knows a trick or two."

"So do I. I haven't lived in uncivilized countries without learning this and that. But it won't cope to that. I am going to save you from yourself, Jean, and do it in a civilized way, not by heathen warfare. I have a friend, a lawyer, who will put it over quietly, and without delay. Vivian will give you a large settlement, but if he doesn't, it will not matter. I have plenty, and—Jean, he drew her to him, "you will marry me when you are free, won't you?"

"It would be heaven," she whispered, "but I can't see the way."

"I'll find a way," Sayre said, and then Austin came round the corner of the rose hedge.

"Don't mind me," the intruder said, "I say, you ought to see Viv! He's laying down the law to a new valet, and he's fussy about his clothes than Beau Brummell himself, and about manners than Lord Chesterfield. But I tell you the fellow has a muscle on him that would feel an ox!"

"But Vivian doesn't want any oxen felled," Jean told Austin. "He'd better make friends with his minion, though. I've heard rumors and portents—"

"What do you mean, Austin?" Jean asked him.

"Oh, it rather centers about the baby doll. That siren vamp! Esme would be Circe and Helen rolled into one, if she only had some decent background. I wonder you let her stay here, Jean!"

"Why, Austin, has she treated you as badly as all that? You must have been put in your place!"

"Nonsense, she doesn't belong in this environment, that's all." "Well, I can't put her out. Go to Vivian."

"Did, and nearly got put out myself! But what I heard hinted was that she is already married, and her better half—she couldn't be worse—is coming up here to take it out of Viv."

"I know where you got all that gossip," Sayre said. "From our alert reporter and commentator, Suzy."

"Well, pay no attention to it," Jean begged. "I don't want any scenes until after the tournament, and then let us hope Esme will fade out, leaving Vivian all in one piece."

"She won't take her heart with her," Austin declared. "He's prettier fed up with her already. Guess we'd better let sleeping dogs lie."

To most of those gathered at Forrest Fell the day passed happily. The fencing enthusiasts practiced with energy and patience and the others found varied amusements.

In the late afternoon, making certain that Vivian was in the play garden, swinging Esme so high that she squealed with frightened pleasure, Jean went to the pretty white cottage where lay the jewel of her heart.

"She's asleep, Mrs. Forrest," said Rhoda, "but, well, it's almost time she wakened."

The mother lifted the baby from her crib, and she nestled in the welcoming arms.

"Oh, you darling, you precious!" Jean crooned over her curly head. "Has anybody been here, Rhoda?"

"Yes, ma'am, and there was hesitation. Mr. Forrest came in a time ago."

"Did he say anything in particular?"

"Not to say definite, ma'am—he just said he wondered if I would like to go up into the mountains for the rest of the summer."

"The mountains! What mountains?"

"I don't know, ma'am. Maybe the Catskills or the Adirondacks, I'm thinking."

"He didn't half mean it, Rhoda. Perhaps he thought the weather might be too warm for her later on."

"Yes, ma'am, that was it." But Jean went away from the nursery with a sinking heart.

She knew there was no limit to what Vivian would or could do if he chose. She must ask him about this, and if he meant to send Florine to the mountains, she vowed a deep vow that she would go, too.

Later, when she was in her room, dressing for dinner, Vivian came in.

"Mini, vamoose!" he said, looking the girl over from head to foot and smiling at her. "I want to talk to Mrs. Forrest."

"Jean," he began at once. "I have something to say to you, and also something I must attend to quickly. So I must speak briefly, and you must listen."

"Yes," said Jean, noncommittally, but with a sinking heart.

"Do you remember," he went on, "when we were in Paris, on our wedding trip, and—I have not forgotten—you turned all heads and won all hearts with your beauty and grace? Do you remember?"

"Yes. Do you remember when we went to dinner at the home of Jules Augier?"

"Oh, those people! I do." "You're wonderful when you show scorn! Your great, brown eyes are at their best when you're scathingly intolerant. You're thinking, doubtless, of the household—"

"Yes, wasn't he the man who had two wives?" "You called it that, when we reached home, after the dinner. But both the ladies were not his wife. It was what the French call—you know—"

"Say it yourself." He laughed at her expression. "They call it a menage a trois. They lived very happily."

"Did you come here to remind me of them?" "I did, my dear, because that is what we are going to have here. Esme is going to stay on, as part of our household, and we will have a menage a trois."

Jean turned white, but held on to her senses and her nerves.

"Leave the room," she said, with no trace of anger or shock, and, having accomplished his end, Vivian left the room.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Your energies and ambitions will be strong today and until 8:30 p. m. you will desire swift progress or want to be in a hurry. Therefore, you are likely to rush things too swiftly to their ultimate conclusion. It will be better to move slowly and with caution. After 8:30 p. m. conditions change, making this a favorable period for attending to ordinary matters.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—An auspicious day to improve conditions around you and to undertake work of a constructive nature. The entire day favors general business activities, social matters and domestic interests.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Throughout the day and until 3:30 p. m. favors the beginning of almost anything that is important. An excellent time to advance business interests, whether commercialized or artistic. After 3:30 p. m. favors travel, dealings with brothers and sisters.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Previous to 1:00 p. m. the influences abound which bring impatience, nervousness and an irritable feeling, therefore you may be lacking in your usual calm and self-control. Not an especially auspicious day for making changes. Stick to routine.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Before 4:30 p. m. favors meetings, conferences, plans and projects. The period favors seeking the aid of important friends and for efforts pertaining to friends or where the element of pleasure is involved. After 4:30 p. m. and continuing throughout the evening hours avoid publicity.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day will be an auspicious one to find support and attain favors. Plan to go after the things you desire in finances, progress and literary pursuits. An excellent day for making progress.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Personal affairs and interests of a wider scope may show a tendency toward strain, animosity or you may be inclined to overdo. Therefore, the day does not especially favor new beginnings.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Storms of anger may easily appear before 1:00 p. m. and the day is a period to be exceedingly cautious in all ways. Before 1:00 p. m. and 6:45 p. m. favors travel, communications and artistic ideas.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 3:30 p. m. use conservative methods in all things. Not an especially auspicious period for dealing with those in high positions. From 3:30 p. m. and throughout the pursuits, the day use care in contacts with others and be careful to know exactly what you sign your name to.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—Before 5:30 a. m. and 7:47 p. m. do not take chances that can be avoided. Use care in travel and avoid discussions. Between 5:30 a. m. and 7:47 p. m. favors general business interests and by acting quickly you will be able to favor new beginnings.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Now is the time to go after the things that you have been dreaming. Matters that have taken careful study and hard work should be brought to light. Older propositions will likely make steady progress and activities of the usual and ordinary nature will meet greater reward.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Previous to 2:30 p. m. favors domestic interests, general business progress and activities of the usual and ordinary nature. After 2:30 p. m. agreements, contracts and legal matters.

Some Enlisted Men Can Wear Civilian Clothes on Duty

By Capt. Gene Morgan.

"Are there any exceptions to the general rule that American soldiers' mail is not censored?"

Exceptions might arise in the case of a body of men detailed to guard structures containing what are regarded as technical secrets of the armed forces. Great vigilance must be maintained in the safeguarding of certain aviation and ballistic devices, and it is likely that soldiers having daily contact with the premises in which such devices are housed would be restricted in the giving out of information. However, by and large, the mails are free for the use of soldiers.

"Are enlisted members of the Army permitted to dress in civilian clothes at times?"

They are. It is a common practice among enlisted men to wear civilian clothes while on leave. In cities where corps and other headquarters are established, the enlisted personnel engaged in clerical and technical work habitually wear "civies" even when on duty. It is possible, of course, that as the tempo of national defense efforts increases or should impending crisis loom more menacingly, such leniency with regard to wearing of civilian garb may be tightened. # The Gentleman--

From Troup ... From Newton ... From Pickens ...

Representative Dallis, of Troup. Senator Benton Odom Jr., of Newton, 9th District. Representative Roscoe Pickett Jr., of Pickens.

Representative Dallis, of Troup county, thinks that attendance and membership in the Georgia general assembly makes a better citizen out of any man. He also thinks it spurs an interest in state affairs and all persons connected with the state. Because of a better understanding and knowledge of the government, he thinks any person will become more useful to his community.

Representative Dallis makes his home in LaGrange, where he is engaged in the real estate and insurance business. He is a bachelor, age 50.

at the CITY HALL

Mayor LeCraw yesterday called his newly appointed Atlanta traffic board, composed of citizens and city officials, to meet at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club. The mayor has appointed five of the six citizens members and is expected to fill the vacant post today.

Charles M. Ford, 31, deputy city clerk since January, 1927, will leave for Army observation training work next Wednesday. He has been ordered to report to the First Observation Squadron, Fort Riley, Kansas, to train with new units of mechanized cavalry.

Miss Carletta Babb, the mayor's private secretary, yesterday caused something of a jam in the movement of communications in the executive offices. She was at home ill, and Mayor LeCraw was complaining mildly about not being able to answer his mail.

TEACHERS' PENSION PLAN. COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 5.—Columbus public school teachers appeared before the city commissioners yesterday, asking that steps be taken to insure a pension system for teachers. The delegation asked that the pension be on the contributory plan, similar to social security, and 5 per cent was mentioned as the amount to be deducted from the monthly pay of teachers in order to build up a fund to be participated in by the city.

Impeachment Hearing Date For Gibson Set

Head of Prison Farm To Face Nine Charges Tuesday Night.

Hearings on a nine-count impeachment charge against H. H. Gibson, superintendent of the city prison farm, will begin at 7 o'clock Tuesday night in council chamber, it was announced last night by Councilman Paul Butler, chairman of a five-man committee named by Mayor LeCraw to conduct the probe. City council ordered establishment of the group at its meeting last Monday.

Other members of the committee are Aldermen G. Dan Bridges and Lester R. Brewer and Councilmen Frank Wilson and Howard Haire.

In announcing the committee personnel the mayor pointed out he had not named any member of this year's or last year's prison committee and followed requests of several council members that they not be designated to serve on the group.

There was considerable discussion yesterday as to whether or not the hearings would be open to the public. It is known that some committee members believe executive sessions would curtail "scandal."

Passion Play Is Beautiful, Artistic Work

Excellent Cast Presents Story of Christ at Auditorium.

Traditions come and go, but the Passion Play lives on forever amid tradition that is age old.

The Passion Play has come to Atlanta in a presentation beautiful from the artistic standpoint, enlightening from the educational view, and awe-inspiring from any angle.

For both young and old, it brings a more comprehensive story of the life of the Prince of Peace. And this particular presentation by the original players of Leuden, run out of their native Germany by Nazism, is rendered with enthusiasm because these players have lived the story of the Christ.

Josef Meier, virtually born the Prince of Peace, because when only 10 weeks old he was wrapped in swaddling clothes and placed in a manger to play a role in the original play at Westphalia, Germany, stands out, typifies an omnipotent sense of purity and recaptures, possibly as well as any person who has ever played the part, the life of the perfect person.

His expression, always one of kindness and understanding, soars above every line of the play, tramples the pleas to "crucify him" and in itself rules the entire performance. Meier is backed by a strong cast.

The engagement which began Monday will be concluded Sunday at the municipal auditorium.

Five Million Man Who Came DeKalb-Fulton To Dinner Well Hospital Asked Worth Seeing

Delegations of 2 Counties Offer Bill To Set Up Authority.

Erection of a $5,000,000 hospital for Fulton and DeKalb counties to replace the present Grady was proposed yesterday in a bill and constitutional amendment introduced in the house of representatives calling for the creation of a hospital authority.

Representative Paul S. Etheridge Jr. and Helen Douglas Mankin, of the Fulton delegation, and Representatives Murphree Candler Jr., Mell Turner and John A. Dunaway, of DeKalb, introduced the proposed legislation.

Representative Etheridge explained the hospital authority would be organized in much the same manner as the authority which supervised the state institutions at Milledgeville. The state authority has been abolished by the legislature, the majority of its duties having been performed.

The authority would have the power to borrow money, issue bonds and levy a hospital tax for retiring the bonds, Etheridge said. This provision would make it possible to obtain funds from federal agencies.

Etheridge said it was presumed the hospital would be erected on the site of the present Grady, and that it would receive patients from Atlanta, Decatur, as well as Fulton and DeKalb counties. This, however, will be decided by the authority, he added.

The necessity for such a bill, the representative explained, was brought about by the failure of the people to vote bonds.

The constitutional amendment would make it possible for cities and counties to contract with the hospital authority as to their pro rata share for the operation and maintenance of the hospital.

The plan was first proposed by the Grady hospital board of trustees, headed by T. K. Glenn.

Under the plan, Fulton and DeKalb counties would levy special hospital taxes, to retire bonds, which the authority would issue for construction of new buildings, and to operate and maintain the institutions.

In addition, the Negro unit of Grady, operated by Emory University, would be rebuilt in line with the advancement made by the Grady white unit, under the plans. A total of $370,000 was included for equipping and furnishing Grady and Battle Hill in the estimates released by the Grady board.

Illustrious Safe At Alexandria, Knox Reveals

1,000-Pound Bomb Killed 80 Men, Destroyed 20 Planes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(P)—Secretary Knox said today the British aircraft carrier Illustrious, surviving Axis air attacks which cost her about 80 men killed and 20 bombing planes destroyed in one direct hit by a 1,000-pound bomb, had arrived at Alexandria, Egypt, under her own power from Malta.

The Navy secretary's disclosure was the first mention of the number killed in the crossing of the Mediterranean from Malta, where the newest of Britain's carriers first had limped to refuge.

In reaching the main British fleet base in the Mediterranean the Illustrious survived the hardest test so far of airpower versus warships.

Knox told of the Illustrious' experiences in a press conference discussion of the vulnerability of surface craft under air bombing.

An aircraft carrier, he noted, was less heavily armored than a battleship, and in addition he said the Illustrious was lacking the protection of its usual complement of fighter planes. It was "stocked" with bombers, and its relatively few fighters were already aloft when she was bombed.

The explosion, Mr. Knox told his press conference, failed even to affect not only the vessel's power but also her navigability.

Stenographer's Ad Asks for Daily Ride

Miss Florence Gilley, of 1466 Stokes avenue, S. W., demands comfort. She's definitely tired of commuting on a street car to which she must walk through an open field every weekday morning, rain or shine, snow or sleet.

So yesterday she decided, again definitely, to do something about it. She advertised in The Constitution for "transportation"—automobile transportation to be more exact.

She is a stenographer for the post office inspection service in the old Post Office building, and leaves home about 7:30 o'clock in the morning, she said.

Man Who Came To Dinner Well Worth Seeing

Clifton Webb Superb in Hilarious Comedy by Hart & Kaufman.

By TOM McRAE.

Atlanta had to wait two seasons for Hart and Kaufman's "The Man Who Came to Dinner," but judging from the applause during the play and curtain calls, it was worth it.

The Erlanger was packed last night, as if a session of the Constitution's cooking school was going on. Today there will be a matinee and night performance of "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Clifton Webb plays the role of Sheridan Whiteside, which allegedly portrays the foibles and idiosyncrasies of Alexander Woollcott. Hart and Kaufman gave Webb brilliant lines and situations that permitted a good actor to show his talent very easily. A nasty thing to say about such an accomplished group of actors, but the rest of the outstanding cast are only support to build up and bring out the character of Sheridan Whiteside. No finer work could be asked than that turned in by Louise Buckley, Sheridan's secretary; Doris Diana Dalton, actress friend of Sheridan's; James MacColl and Joey Faye, actor friends of Sheridan. The roles of the others are subdued, but handled excellently. If they did not impress the audience, it was not their fault but Hart and Kaufman's.

In playing down these roles Hart and Kaufman gave added strength to Webb's. Clifton Webb played the role for all it was worth; he got everything possible out of the lines and his mannerisms were good for laughs when the lines weren't.

There was plenty of fine acting when Webb was off stage, but somehow you wondered what he was doing even then. But the play revolved around the wheel chair and the loud dressing gown and Webb. The role required ubiquity and Webb was always there. It is impossible to attend a play here without folks telling you how much better it was in New York. They said Monte Woolley is much better than Webb but these folks, when pinned down, gave pretty vague answers, and until Woolley comes to town there will be more than several who thought Webb was all right.
